AIRCRAFT TRUTH TO BE TOLD

"No Whitewash," Says Chamberlain; Senator Thomas Criticizes Borglum

By International News Service

Washington, May 7.—The Senate Military Affairs Committee will investigate the aircraft program and show to the country what has been done with every dollar of the hundreds of millions appropriated for aviation purposes, Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the committee, announced in the Senate this afternoon.

"It will be no whitewashing process either," added Senator Chamberlain.

Brought to his feet by the persistent clamor in the Senate for a Congressional investigation, Chamberlain declared:

WILL BE NO WHITEWASH.

"I will say here now that it is not the purpose of the committee to abandon its efforts to give the country the truth about the aircraft program.

"There is something radically wrong. No man in the committee can

AMERICAN GENERALS ILL; ARE RELIEVED FROM DUTY

By NEWTON C. PARKE.

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, May 7.—Brigadier-General Benjamin Alvord, adjutant-general of the American expeditionary forces, and General Bradley, chief surgeon, have been relieved on account of ill health. They are returning to the United States.

Lieutenant-Colonel Robert C. Davis will act as adjutant and Colonel M. W. Ireland takes General Bradley's place as chief surgeon.

BRITISH REPRISALS ONLY CUT COMFORTS

London, May 7.—British reprisal methods for the ill treatment of British prisoners in German prison camps are not brutal, Lord Newton, head of the prisoners branch of the War Department, said today. The British reprisals involve restriction on recreation, closer confinement and fewer comforts.

GEN. MAURICE'S 'WATERLOO' TO BE PROBED

By International News Service

London, May 7.—Chancellor A. Bonar Law, replying to a question asked by former Premier Asquith, stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that he proposed to invite two judges to investigate statements made by General Maurice.

The investigation will be private, and secret documents will be gone into, it was said. The government will give a day for discussion of the matter, and the army council will consider the question of military discipline, Law added. Asquith will be allowed to nominate the Judges if he cares to do so.

General Maurice was formerly director of military operations attached to the British War Office and gave out weekly statements to the press. He is now on active duty in France. It was he who compared the British crisis to the battle of Waterloo and asked: "Where is Blucher"

New Hot Blast Record in Sight as Mercury Nears the 'Top'

Today's weather equalled the record-breaking temperature of yesterday and threatened to beat it. It was oppressive Summer weather.

At 2 o'clock today the mercury had reached 88, which mark was the maximum yesterday at 3 p. m., an hour later. Indications were that the mercury would continue to rise, in which case a new record would be established.

At 8 a. m. Boston's temperature was seventy-two degrees, or eighteen degrees warmer than at the same hour yesterday. At noon it was eighty-five, and by 2 o'clock had reached eighty-eight. As the maximum was not reached until 3 p. m. yesterday, it was expected that the temperature at that time today would be hotter.

At 1 a. m. today the official Boston

DRAFT EVADERS CAUGHT SWIMMING RIO GRANDE

Brownsville, Tex., May 7.—Henry J. Toussaint, who said he was from Washington, D. C., was arrested charged with draft evasion.

He swam the Rio Grande, it is charged, to get out of the country into Mexico, but when he landed on the Mexican side he was held up and robbed. He returned voluntarily.

Sell Drugs in Berlin to Kill Pangs of Hunger

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, May 7.—Drugs to kill hunger are now being sold in Berlin. The Tagliache Rundschau prints an advertisement of a Berlin druggist saying:

"To hear hunger without suffering headache is very difficult. Though not forming a food substitute, there is an excellent preparation for stilling premature hunger, enabling a person to hold out until the next meal."

BRITISH RAID ENEMY LINES; TAKE GUNS

London, May 7.—British troops successfully raided the German lines at Neuville Vitasse, the War Office reported today.

German troops tried to raid the British lines at Boyelles, but were repelled.

Neuville Vitasse is about two miles and a half south and a little east of Arras. Boyelles is about four miles south of Arras.

"A successful raid was carried out in the night time in the neighborhood of Neuville Vitasse. We captured a few prisoners and three machine guns, with slight casualties. A raid attempted by the enemy at Boyelles was repulsed. There is nothing further to report," says the War Office report.

Correspondents at the British front agree that the next German blow is likely to come in the Arras region.

Allied aviators have reported that the enemy's preparation seems almost completed.

Big guns have been moved up, the railroad lines repaired and large sup-

U. S. Steamship Tyler Torpedoed Off French Coast; Members of Crew Perish

New York, May 7.—The American steamship Tyler has been torpedoed and sunk off the French coast with the loss of eleven lives, according to information received here today. All of the victims were members of the crew. The Tyler displaced 3,082 tons and was formerl owned by the Old Dominion Line. She was built in 1913.

By International News Service.

Washington, May 7.—The probable sinking of a German submarine on March 17 by the gunners of the American steamship Tidewater was announced by the Navy Department today.

The submarine, the report says, was sighted about 11:30 p. m. off the starboard bow, heading toward the vessel, not more than twenty feet distant. The U-boat was then submerging. The guns were brought to bear and the first shot hit some distance ahead of the raider.

"The pointer fired the second shot," the commander of the gun crew reported, "and had what the captain, the chief engineer and myself and other members of the crew called a clean hit and was satisfied that it was effective. A third shot was fired by the boatswain's mate in charge of the after gun crew, firing in the position the U-boat submerged.

"We resumed our course and commenced standing by for an attack, but the submarine did not reappear. We made all preparation for an attack at daybreak, but there were no signs of a submarine."

ITALY HAS FORMALLY ACCEPTED GEN. FOCH

London, May 7.—Premier Orlando, on behalf of Italy, has agreed to the appointment of a generalissimo of the allied armies, said a Reuter's dispatch from Paris today.

PRAGUE BREAD FAMINE FOR PAST THREE WEEKS

Paris, May 7.—Prague, capital of Bohemia, has been without bread for three weeks, according to advices reaching here today.

MORE AMERICANS REACH BATTLEFRONT.

London, May 7.—The Echo de Paris today quotes its editor, Marcel Hutin, as ascribing to Premier Clemenceau the statement that United States troops are progressively reaching the battlefront in force. The premier has just returned from a two-days' trip of inspection along the front lines and further expressed to M. Hutin his firm conviction that the allied forces will prove invincible.

OVERMAN BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE.

Washington, May 7.—The House Judiciary Committee favorably reported the Overman bill, giving the President power to reorganize the executive departments, to the House today. The bill was reported without amendment.

TIRED OF GERMAN RULE

Domination of Berlin in War Galling to Subjects of Dual Monarchy

Washington, May 7.—Dispatches today regarding internal troubles in the central powers featured these points:

1. The food situation in Germany is more critical than it has been at any time.

2. There has been a mutiny in the Austrian navy which was suppressed with the utmost severity.

3. Revolts are increasing in the Slovenian districts of Austria. Slovenian women joined men in fighting Germans at Windischgraetz railroad station. Several combatants were wounded. Slovenian and German deputies met in bloody clash at St. Jean.

4. The general revolutionary outbreaks in Austro-Hungary are due to resentment against German domination, to famine and other war burdens. Extraordinary repressive measures have been taken by the Crown. The situation is viewed with keen alarm from Berlin.

If Germany seizes the grain supply of the Ukraine, the bread situation will continue as at present; otherwise

"The artillery was active on both sides in the sector of the Avre River (southeast of Amiens)," the French War Office announced today.

"The Germans attempted to raid a small French post west of Hangard, but were repulsed.

Signs Grow That Next German Drive Will Be on Arras

By FRANK CHARLTON

International News Service Cable Editor.

All indications today were that the next blow that the Germans strike will be delivered in the Arras sector.

There have been heavy concentrations of German men and guns in that region and the British War Office today told of a raid there which was evidently carried out with a view to determining the strength of the German forces.

European military critics have long predicted that the Germans would drive on Arras. There are bright positions of great strategic importance lying immediately north of the city and the Germans evidently hope to compel the British to abandon them by a flanking movement on the southern side.

SHIFTING TROOPS.

During the eight days that have elapsed since the Germans were so badly whipped on the northern end of the Flanders front, Von Rhoenburg has been shifting his troops and guns and a large part of the fresh concentrations now lie to the east of Arras.

In the meantime the guns have been busy on the Picardy front and gigantic artillery duels have developed along the greater part of the battle line.

The possibility of a double blow—one delivered east of Amiens and the other on the Arras front—grows.

Should this be the case, the Americans will be caught in the thick of the fighting, for they are holding an important part of the Picardy front between fifteen and twenty miles southeast of Amiens.

CANADIANS AT VIMY.

On the Arras front the Canadians will have an important role to play, for they have just taken over a sector in that zone and from the developments of the past 48 hours the Germans are likely to strike against the position which they captured in the big British offensive on the Arras front last year. Vimy ridge (which lies just northeast of Arras) is evidently one of the objectives against which the Germans are aiming now.

So far the heralded drive of the Austro-German armies on the Italian front is held in abeyance, but it is becoming more and more evident that it is the Teutonic strategy to strike in both theatres of war at the same time.

MAY BE CAMOUFLAGE.

It is possible that the german army command may be camouflaging, and that the increasing violence of the artillery firing on the southwestern front is meant to delude the allies, but it is not often that such immense quantities of ammunition is used for such a purpose.

The next forty-eight hours should see decisive developments in the western war theatre if not in both the French and Italian areas.

This was the forty-eighth day of the German grand offensive.

Brookline Honors Memory of Rigby, Killed in France

Solemn requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of Private Norbert E. Rigby, killed in action on April 23, was celebrated today in St. Mary's Church of the Assumption, Brookline.

The celebrant was the Rev. Bernard S. O'Kane, assisted by the Rev. John P. Sheehan, as deacon, and the Rev. Aloysius R. Finn as sub-deacon. In the sanctuary were the Rev. Theodore Metcalf, retired, and the Rev. Michael F. McManus, pastor of the church. Town officials and members of the local G. A. R. were also present.

Private Rigby was the son of Mrs. Charles A. Rigby of No. 135 Davis avenue, Brookline, and was a member of Battery A, 101st Field Artillery.

REPORT REVOLT IN AUSTRIAN NAVY

conditions will go from the present, which is bad, to decidedly worse.

The seizure of the grain supply, the nutrition commission of the Reichstag admits, will not result in the increasing of rations.

These were the outstanding features of a dispatch received today by the State Department from an authoritative source which was not revealed.

PIT GERMANS IN CREWS.

The Austrian naval mutiny is the latest outbreak reported in the growing unrest against German domination of the Austrian Crown.

A dispatch today from Zurich, via Paris, said that serious trouble had occurred among Austrian naval crews. The disturbance was suppressed with the utmost severity.

The serious extent of the mutiny is emphasized by the additional information that numerous changes were made in the high command of the fleet and that immediate steps were taken to increase the percentage of Germans on the war vessels.

Italians and Slavs are said to have started the naval revolt. The presence of Slavs among the ringleaders is in line with the reports of Slav activity in the Austrian land troubles.

SLOVENIAN UNREST.

Through Serbian channels it has been learned that the unrest among the Slovenians is increasing day by day and open mutiny is spreading.

In addition to the clash between Germans on one side and Slovenian men and women at Windischgraetaz railroad station, more information has come, via Serbia, concerning the recent outbreak at St. Jean between German and Slovenian deputies, in which blood was shed.

The Slovenian deputies called the meeting with the object of forming anti-German feeling and of stirring up the peasantry to favor separation from Austria.

Members of the Jugoslav Club, which seeks an independent Jugoslav State, urged the Slovenians to take forcible measures, if necessary, to free themselves from German domination.

The Slovenians cheered these sentiments. The German deputies raised a cheer for the Hapsburgs, the royal family.

From cheering the opposing factions went to fighting and shedding blood.

REPRESSIVE MEASURES.

Revolutionary tendencies are cropping out in Austria-Hungary, later dispatches from urich said, and extraordinary measures have been taken to preserve order. News from Vienna today was more serious than ever, although the Austrian government has issued a denial of certain rumors. Repressive measures have been taken to prevent manifestations.

An official manifesto has been issued in Vienna justifying the attitude of the government.

Premier von Seydler is preparing to make an important move, but it is not certain that he can restore calm. This depends largely upon the action taken by the Poles.

For some weeks there have been seething political developments in Austria-Hungary, which have been fostered to some extent by war weariness and famine.

The dissensions between the Czech and Slav elements have been growing and there have been hostile manifestations throughout the country. The Austrian government has been vainly trying to find a solution and to bring the hostile factions together but without any result.

Political reforms have been promised in Hungary, but they have not been forthcoming, and a group of Hungarian statesmen recently went to Vienna to attempt to force Premier Von Seydler out of office.

account for anything like the $640,000,000 spent by the aircraft management. The committee is going to pursue this thing and ascertain where the money has been spent. The committee is not going to engage in any whitewashing process either."

"This thing has not developed in a day," Senator Chamberlain said. "The investigation itself is not the development of a day. Charges of a sensational nature from reputable citizens reach my office every day.

EVEN BRING AIRMEN BACK.

"This committee is determined to do whatever is necessary to win the war. If there are men who are responsible for the failure to speed up the war, this committee proposes to point them out to the country.

"America has not put any American built planes on the front, and the American people should be told the truth. The flower of the American youth—the aces of America—to the number of 1,500 have been sent abroad, and now the chief signal officer tells us that they are to be brought back here for training. If they have planes abroad there, why don't they give them to these men? They are the victims of the extreme optimism of the chief signal officer, and something must be done to protect these young men from the optimism of the Aircraft Board."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts inquired:

"Isn't it true that men who are already good fliers have been sent to France and haven't been able to get their feet off the ground?"

"I believe that is true," Senator Chamberlain answered.

Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, whose charges of criminal profiteering in the aircraft program led President Wilson yesterday to order an investigation by the Department of Justice, was the target for a sharp attack by Senator Thomas immediately after the Senate convened.

TAKES FLING AT BORGLUM.

Senator Thomas had read into the record the letter sent to him by the President announcing that the aircraft investigation had been ordered.

"That letter was the result of a conference I had with the President," said Senator Thomas. "Since then I have been favored with an inspection of the documents showing the association of Mr. Borglum with certain manufacturers.

"Regardless of the truth of falsity of his charges, these documents are not at all creditable to Mr. Borglum and must seriously affect the credibility of any statements he may make."

YANKEES ARE GASSED BY GERMANS

BY BERT FORD,

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, May 7.—American troops holding a sector of the French front in Picardy, assisting the French defense of the road to Amiens, were subjected to an unusually violent gas attack along their entire front. The Germans hurled 15,000 gas shells into the American lines.

The first bombardment with a torrent of gas shells began at 8 o'clock. It lasted several hours. The second attack developed about midnight. Seventeen hundred gas shells were dropped into our lines this time. Most of them contained "mustard gas" Other brands, including the new type projected by glass containers, also were scattered over our lines. The containers are known as "humbers."

Simultaneously with the tremendous gas shelling the enemy launched a great aerial attack, which was energetically met by us. Our anti-aircraft batteries shot down one German airplane and damaged a second. It was a spectacular night action.

The conduct of the Americans during the bombardment was splendid. All ranks were eager to meet "Fritz."

The new enemy gas shells break without report, which adds to the sinister effect of these weapons.

The Germans are using all their latest war devices against our troops. On the American front in the Toul sector recently the Germans used a liquid flame gun shooting blasts thirty feet in length and issuing all kinds of gas. They also used a new automatic revolver resembling a miniature machine gun.

SPAULDING, WORCESTER TECH TEACHER OF GERMAN, ON TRIAL AT AYER

ACCUSED OF DISLOYAL TALK

Former Assistant Professor, Also Acting Corporal, Faces Court-martial

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 7—The trial of Acting Corporal John Austin Spaulding, former assistant professor of German at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, opened here this afternoon before a general court martial. Spaulding is accused of making unpatriotic utterances while a candidate at the Third Officers' Training Camp at this cantonment.

Colonel Charles C. Smith, commander of the "Old Colony" infantry regiment, is president of the court and Lieutenant John B. Cummings of the same regiment, son of John W. Cummings of Fall River, is judge advocate. Lieutenant Daniel W. Lincoln, a former Representative of Worcester, is assistant judge advocate.

Spaulding is a graduate of Harvard. Several members of the court are also Harvard men. The make-up of the court martial is the same as that which tried Sergeant Ernest J. Plentje of "Boston's Own" on a similar charge.

Spaulding registered in Tewksbury, coming here in a draft delegation from that town. He was assigned to the 26th Company of the 151st Depot Brigade and demonstrated sufficient military ability to be selected as one of the candidates to attend the Third Officers' Training Camp. Several other candidates at the camp have been called as witnesses.

He formerly studied in Germany and is said to have been an intense admirer of the German people.

It was stated at division headquarters today that the fourth Officers' Training Camp, which opens here on May 15, would be conducted as part of the division schools under the general supervision of Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Croft.

The name of the officer who will have immediate charge of the camp has not been divulged, although he is expected to be an officer who has just been assigned this cantonment, and who is reported to be on his way here from Washington.

SANFORD BATES TAKES SHAW'S PLACE

Mayor Peters today appointed Street Commissioner Sanford Bates as temporary Penal Institutions Commissioner, to take the place of David B. Shaw, whose resignation went into effect today. Shaw resigned over two months ago.

The salary of the newly-appointed commissioner is $5,000 a year. Mayor Peters stated that the appointment was to be a permanent one.

When asked if he planned to reinstate James H. Burke master of the House of Correction at Deer Island, Mayor Peters said: "I shall wait and see what the new commissioner says about it. Mr. Bates will visit the island and examine conditions there."

Mr. Shaw plans to return to his practice of law.

HARROWING SPEED BY CITY'S TRACTOR

"Liberty Queen," the city of Boston's most valuable asset—an auto tractor—broke all local harrowing records when she completed twenty-five acres of land in Franklin Park. She had already passed all of the "war cats" in the park system. Farm Manager Samuel Youngman and an engineer were at the wheel during the record-breaking feat at Franklin Park.

Hundreds of people at the park witnessed the feat. The soil, now all ready to be marked off by the city engineers, is of excellent quality.

Assistment of plots will be made soon.

BOY WINDOW-SMASHERS MUST PAY FOR DAMAGE

At the result of a crusade against juvenile stone-throwers in the Mt. Bowdoin district, Dorchester, four boys were in district court at Dorchester today. They were placed on probation for six months and each was ordered to pay $10 for the damage done when thirty-two panes of glass were broken in cars of the New York,

COURT MT. CARMEL WILL HAVE CONCERT

A concert and entertainment will be given on Friday evening by Court Mt. Carmel of the National Order of the Daughters of Isabella for the benefit of the K. of C. War Fund. The entertainment is to be held at the Roxbury School Centre, Greenville street, Roxbury.

SUZANNE BRINKLEY TO BE BRIDE? THE IDEA!

Suzanne Brinkley, Boston singer, whose marriage intention has been taken out by C. R. Hector, musical director. But Miss Brinkley says: "The idea!" Photograph by Marceau.

SORROW DRIVES YOUNG WOMAN FROM HOME

Miss Cobban of Groveland, 24, Soon to Be Married, Suddenly Disappears

Haverhill, May 7.—Miss Margaret M. Cobban, twenty-four, of Groveland, who mysteriously disappeared last Friday, was suffering from a secret sorrow, it was learned today.

Girl employes at the J. F. Howard factory, where she was a hookkeeper, said that for two months they had observed her weeping. She refused to tell them of her troubles.

Miss Cobban was a Sunday School teacher and a member of the Groveland Congregational Church and was about to be married to Wilfred N. Wales. Wales, who also lives in Groveland, accompanied his fiancee to Haverhill on Friday morning and was the last resident of that town to see her.

She worked all day Friday, and was last seen by employes of the company when on the way to the Bradford postoffice. Clerks at the postoffice stated that the firm's mail, which Miss Cobban was accustomed to deliver, was left at the postoffice Friday afternoon. They do not recall seeing her on that day, however.

Miss Cobban is the oldest of three sisters, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe L. Cobban of Rollins street, Groveland. Rev. Archibald Cullen, pastor of the Congregational church, said that so far as he knew she had no trouble at home or with her fiance. He last saw her Wednesday night, when she attended a concert in Memorial Hall, Groveland, given by the Ladies' Aid Society.

SAYS GERMANS KEEP UP STEADY RAIN OF SHELLS

"The Germans keep us on the go all the time; they are throwing shells over night and day," wrote John M. Keeley, of Company B, 101st Regiment, who has been slightly wounded in action, in a letter just received from France. "They are pretty wise ducks," he continues. "They send over gas shells between the shrapnel, but they can't last forever, and I guess we can take care of them." Keeley is twenty years old and was born in South Boston. He saw service on the Mexican border. His father is Patrick J. Keeley; his mother is dead. He has eight brothers and sisters.

"Marry? The idea!"

Miss Suzanne Brinkley, charming Boston singer, who has been working for the success of the third Liberty Loan, laughed merrily when the question was put to her by an AMERICAN reporter.

Every intonation and expression seemed to intimate that the suggestion was too preposterous to be considered.

The fact remains, however, that a marriage intention was taken out in the name of the young vocal artist by Charles R. Hector, a musical director, at No. 153 Hemenway street.

Miss Brinkley gracefully avoided any incriminating statements.

"I didn't know that I was to be married," she said demurely. "It is surely intensely interesting to be told such pleasant news. But whom might I be marrying? While you are fortune telling, please read that from your magic crystal. I am sure someone is playing a huge joke on me."

Stern city ordinances, however, refuse to humor the caprices of bashful maidens. Marriage intentions must be filed if a couple are desirous of becoming one.

Therefore, it became known that Mr. Hector appeared at the office of the City Registrar in City Hall Annex and took out marriage intentions. He was alone and furnished the necessary information not only for himself, but for his fiancee.

Hector stated that he is twenty-six, and was born in West Hoboken, New Jersey. His father, Charles, and mother, Bertha Knop, were both born in Germany, Hector said.

The young man gave his fiancee's name as Suzanne C. Brinkley, twenty-three, of No. 535 Newbury street, Boston. He said she was single, born in Los Angeles. Her father, Robert C., was born in Memphis, Tenn., and her mother, Victoria Harrison, was born in Huntsville, Alabama.

HELPED LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE.

Miss Brinkley came to Boston when quite young, and made her home with her parents at No. 541 Park street, Dorchester. She graduated from the Oliver Wendell Holmes school and then took up the study of voice culture.

The young girl developed a beautiful lyric soprano voice, which was frequently heard at charitable affairs, particularly at benefits for the sick. She delighted veterans at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea by singing old war songs for them and was always glad to sing in hospitals.

She gave freely of her time and voice in the service of the Liberty Loan, and disposed of many bonds after each song. She has one brother in the Signal Corps in France and another who is an aviator.

3,000 CHICAGO CABARET PERFORMERS HUNT JOBS

Chicago, May 7.—Three thousand singers, dancers, skaters and instrumental musicians are out of jobs today. They are the cabaret artists who sang, danced and skated their towns away last night when the city hall went down tight on "wet" cabarets in Chicago. The old-fashioned cabaret with its wine, women and song died when the clock struck twelve.

WOMAN GIVEN $2,850 VERDICT AGAINST "L"

Mrs. Katherine L. Shaw of Medford was given a verdict of $2,850 by a jury before Judge Brown in the first session of the Superior Civil Court at East Cambridge. She sued the Boston Elevated for $10,000. On June 24, 1917, while alighting from a car in Medford, she was thrown and injured owing to the sudden starting of the car. Her husband, William J. Shaw, who sued for $5,000 for loss of service and expenses, was given $350.

MORE BLUE STARS

Blue stars indicating 100 per cent. oversubscription have been awarded to the following towns:

Massachusetts—Stow, Gleasondale.

Maine—Windsor, Baring, Farmington, Cambridge.

New Hampshire—Chichester, Canaan, Hooksween, Newmarket, Epping, Chatham, Webster, Seabrook. And to Surry and Dublin two stars each.

Connecticut—Winsor Locks, Broadbrook and Seymour. The town of Wapping has been given five stars, a south Winsor five stars and Hebron two stars.

The department of private schools and colleges, Miss Annie Endicott Nourse chairman, started its work more with the idea of arousing patriotism than the expectation of definite returns, but in addition it was to accept such subscriptions as were offered, and the total amount turned in was $1,000,000. SHYLOCK BANK IS LATEST AT RADCLIFFE

College Financiers Launch Lending Plan That Helps Girls and Promoters

Hey, Bank Commissioner Thorndike!

D'ye know about the Shylock Banking Company?

Organized by the Radcliffe College girls. Now running full blast. It's a howling success, too. No wonder.

It loans money at 10 per cent. a month. Talk about German "frightfulness." Wouldn't that ruin your pocketbook.

But it's a life-saver, this usurious banking concern. It is saving many a Radcliffe maid's financial existence in rainy days of "all spent up and no money to go on."

TO THE TUNE OF FUDGE.

The Shylock Banking Company is the product of one group of dormitory girls. These feminine Pierpont Morgans and Russell Sages organized the bank one evening, to the accompaniment of rarebit and fudge cake.

The girls in the scheme contributed their personal allowances to the bank to give it capital. By the same token, every girl thereby became a director and an official.

There was no trouble about a name for the bank. The Shylock Banking Company was so appropriate that no other name need apply.

The bank's business principles (?) are most simple. It lends money to needy girls for a period of one month at ten cents on the dollar.

Already the bank has financed one girl on a trip to New York and another clear to Pennsylvania and back.

CHECKS HONORED.

Furthermore, checks have appeared, made payable to the Shylock Banking Company. These checks have been honored in Harvard square by professional bankers. The regular bankers registered surprise and amusement, but politely said nothing and accepted the checks.

So one cannot borrow money at Radcliffe now and forget all about it. The Shylock Banking Company isn't built that way.

The traffic is still good, however, in ink, party clothes, postage stamps, soap. Summer furs and Spring hats—in fact, almost anything a girl happens to wish in a hurry.

COMMERCIAL FLIERS FOR SCANDINAVIANS

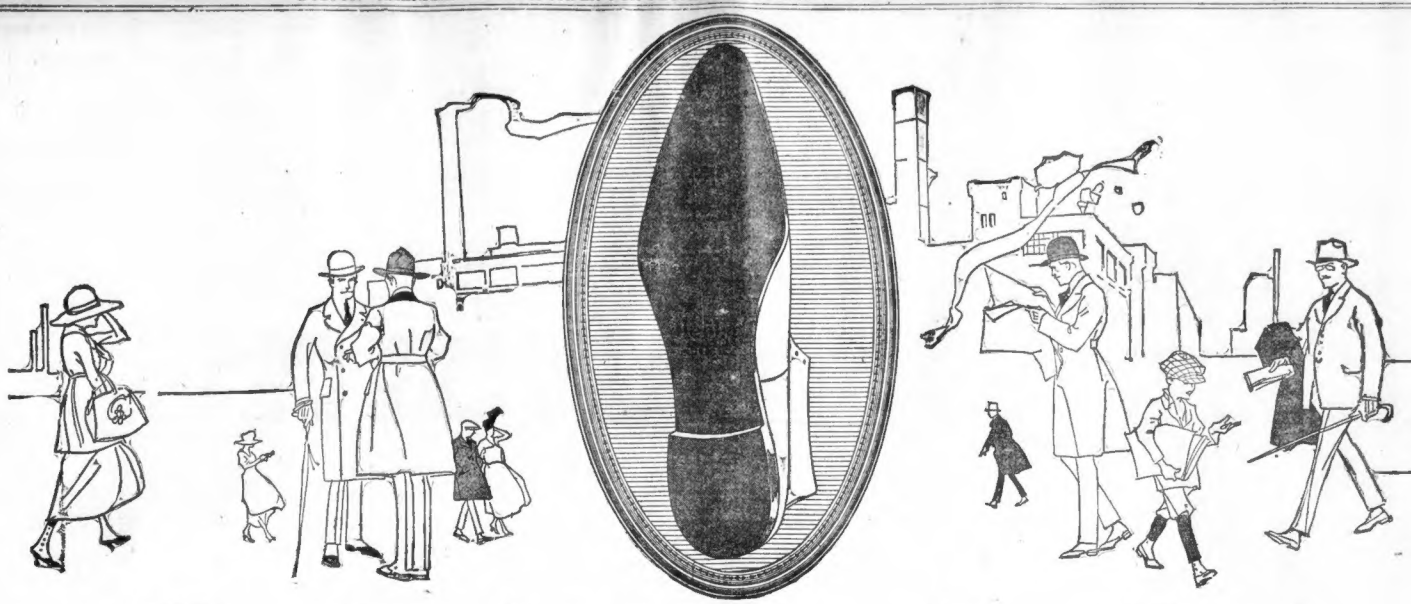
England, it was stated, has been asked to receive the cargo carrying airplanes.



The Kind of Soles You Need

When you analyze your shoe problem carefully you are bound to consider chiefly what kind of soles you need.

You need long-wearing soles—to cut down mounting shoe bills.

You need waterproof soles—to protect against dampness when rubbers are left off.

You need soles that resist slipping and so make walking safer.

You need flexible soles—to be easy on the feet and do away with the old torture of breaking-in.

You need soles that have all these good qualities.

There are such soles—Neōlin Soles, developed by scientists to have all the qualities soles should have.

You and your family need Neōlin Soles and are entitled to them.

Get them on the shoes you buy this Spring.

And have the shoes you have worn re-soled with them.

Learn the economy, comfort and safety of these soles. Give yourself and your family the treat of wearing them.

They cost no more than other soles, to start with, and they save much by their long service.

They are found on new shoes for men, women and children in most good shoe stores, and are used for re-soling in most good repair shops.

When you ask for Neōlin Soles look for the Neōlin trade mark underneath. Dealers and repairmen in the lists below will point out this mark to you as identifying the genuine.

Mark that mark; stamp it on your memory: Neōlin—

HUNS SAY ONLY 8 WERE SLAIN IN U-BOAT RAID

London, May 7.—The Vossische Zeitung claims the German losses in the successful British raid on Ostend and Zeebrugge, U-boat bases, were only eight killed and sixteen wounded, but a Dutch frontier correspondent says in advances received here today, that the German losses really were 100 killed and 220 wounded. Civilians were forced to repair the damages, the Dutch correspondent adds.

4060 SPECIALISTS CALLED TO SERVICE

Washington, May 7.—Four thousand and sixty selective men, specialists listed in the "nation's want column," were called to the colors today by Provost Marshal General Crowder. The movement will take place on May 20, and all States with the exception of Arizona, Delaware and Vermont will be included. The men will be sent to training camps and will be assigned among the branch of the service as follows: Signal corps, 401; engineer corps, 2,333; quartermaster corps, 671, and ordnance, 5.

MILLION MEN IN FRANCE BY JULY 4

Huge Army Abroad This Summer Is America's Reply to Huns' Peace Manoeuvre

Rome, May 7.—Semi-official denial has been issued by the Vatican of recent reports to the effect that Germany has asked Pope Benedict to make a move in behalf of peace.

Washington, May 7.—A million American soldiers in France by July 4 is the program the War Department has undertaken to carry out. It is the answer of the United States to any suggestions of peace Germany may make.

Ambassador Walter Hines Page has communicated to the State Department the alleged new terms which had been unofficially circulated in London. The statement made later by Mr. Balfour denying the British government had knowledge of any peace proposal has not yet been received through any official channels.

The earlier report gained some credence as Jonkheer Colyn, former Minister of War in The Netherlands government, was alleged to have been the bearer of the conciliatory overtures. It was known in diplomatic circles he had made the voyage from Holland to England in a Dutch torpedo boat.

In Dutch circles, it is said, Jonkheer Colyn was a man of very high standing and would not permit his name to be connected with such a report if it was not true. It is known in official circles that the desire in Holland for peace amounts almost to desperation.

This accumulation of circumstances, prior to the publication of the Balfour statement, all found support in the prediction by Lord Robert Cecil that Germany was planning to launch a new peace drive.

It is assumed in diplomatic circles that Colyn may have made the peace proposals in England upon his own responsibility. It is recognized, however, that he probably had some authority for stating what Germany might be willing to do. It was officially said the United States is ready for the peace drive, and the answer will be emphatic. The plan to rush across the Atlantic the next sixty days such additional forces as will give an approximate total of 1,000,000 is working smoothly. The transportation facilities are understood to be at hand.

'Our Ideals of Justice and Liberty Shall Prevail'--Wilson

By International News Service.

Washington, May 7.—"Our ideals of justice, humanity and liberty shall in the end prevail." President Wilson declared today, in telegrams of appreciation to State Councils of National Defence, holding war conferences in many parts of the country.

The President's message says:

"In our fight for the rights of free men the world over, your efforts and the efforts of your fellow citizens are a vital factor.

"Your determination to perform the necessary labor and accept the necessary sacrifice, and the like spirit which has now become manifest throughout our nation, reassure a stricken world that our ideals of justice and humanity and liberty shall in the end prevail."

CONTINUE CASE OF ROSS IN FATAL BAKERY FIRE

Robert Ross, a chauffeur employed by the Blewett Baking Company of Winchester street, Brookline, appeared in the Brookline Court today charged with manslaughter in connection with the fire at the bakery recently in which five men died. His case was continued till May 14 and he was held in $1,000. Ross, it is alleged, drove his automobile dangerously near the building, which was heated to a high temperature, and when the machine back-fired a blaze resulted.

CALL FOR HASTE ON SOUTH BOSTON TUBE

Attorney Daniel T. O'Connell, as chairman of the District Committee of the Dorchester Board of Trade, has written to Mayor Peters, protesting against delay in opening the Andrew square section of the South Boston tunnel, and calling attention to a resolution of the board asking the Mayor to call a conference of interested parties on May 9 to expedite the work.

GERMAN PLAN TO RULE IN AIR FAILS

Allies Still Superior in Aviation Through Latest French and British Fighters

By FLOYD MACGRIFF,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 7—In spite of the tremendous aviation efforts of the Germans, prompted by the entry of the United States into the world conflict, and their threat to have thousands of aircraft available this Spring, the enemy has been unable to even shake the allied air superiority anywhere.

The single seater machines, the Hannover monoplane and the Pfals biplane do not compare with the latest models of French and British fighting planes.

For speed in climbing, the Germans found the Fokker triplane impractical, and it was quickly discarded for a new type of monoplane. While this monoplane was fast, it was unreliable and was less speedy than the wonderful French Morane. The Pfals biplane is a little better, but it suffers continually with motor trouble.

The Germans are now using a lighter machine, which carries a brace of machine guns. The enemy's two-seater of the Albatross-Aviatik type is still the best machine they have. It is speedy and capable of climbing to a great height, owing to its large spread of wings.

However, the Germans are obliged to use faster observation machines than the allied aviators, as their single-seater fighting machines are incapable of protecting the two-seaters as the allied machines are. The scout machines of the allies are also used for guard duty, for regulating artillery fire and for photographic work.

It is also noticeable that the accuracy of the enemy's anti-aircraft guns is falling off. This is due to the fact that many of their best aviators have been drafted for machine gun service to replace those killed in the recent German offensive.

DIVER RISKS LIFE IN BOMB SEARCH IN RIVER

Washington, May 7.—Hazarding his life, Frank A. Anderson, diver at the New York navy yard, dove to the bottom of a river to recover a loaded depth charge, several large projectiles and a number of cartridge cases which had accidentally rolled into the river. He was commended for bravery by the Navy Department today.

FARMERETTES WANTED ON CAPE COD

Social Functions Offered as Lure to Get College Girls on Sea-Scented Soil

Farmerettes are wanted on Cape Cod.

Any husky young woman who can handle farm implements without danger of disastrously blistering her hands, is assured of a job on the ocean-scented farms of the Cape.

As a special inducement the Cape fodders will give "occasional social functions," although they cannot guarantee a large attendance of young men.

In fact, it is because of the absence of these young men, the majority of whom have gone into the service, that the farmerettes are needed.

The report has reached the Cape that Wellesley College girls are eminently proficient at farm work. It was said that the girls handle hoes at spades with the agility with which they wield knitting needles. His report aroused the enthusiasm of the Cape Cod farmers and they will make an effort to induce some of the girls, together with those at Smith College, to spend the Summer working on the Cape.

The season has been delayed because the Cape is bare of labor. From Middleboro to Provincetown more than 500 young men have gone into the service. Nevertheless the work of the sandy-soiled farms must go on. Asparagus beds must be put into good condition. Turnips, for which the Cape is famous, must be attended to, and there are potatoes, beans, corn and cranberries which must be looked for.

Earmarkable has already made plans to house girl farmhands, and the summer colony have promised to lend a few of the students.

KRAINIANS TO HAVE THE BLACK SEA FLEET

Copenhagen, May 7.—The greater part of the Russian Black Sea fleet will be returned to Odessa and placed at the disposal of the new Ukrainian government, according to a report received here today from Vienna.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS
Says Backache is a sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, or you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Advertisement.

WORK OF MAKING NEW CITIZENS IS BEGUN

More Than 3,000 Districts to Be Established for Education of Immigrants

The first move to Americanize the non-citizens of this city was made by the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held by the Committee on Americanization of Immigrants.

Franklin T. Kurt is the head of this committee, and it was decided to appoint fifteen division managers.

The work will be city-wide and its prime object will be to educate and Americanize and then assist the non-citizen element. The work is along lines laid down by the Federal government and the State organization, headed by Bernard J. Rothwell.

At the behest of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, the Chamber has assumed the task of building this organization in Boston to carry out the Americanization program, later to be formulated by the Committee on Public Safety.

The Chamber has divided the city into fifteen districts, corresponding to the geographical divisions. Each division is to be sub-divided into some 200 or more sections, corresponding generally to the school districts, and each of these sections will be responsible to a section captain.

Rhondda Calls the Kaiser "Herod of 20th Century"

By International News Service.

London, May 7.—Commenting on the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania, Lord Rhondda declared today the Kaiser "will be known as the Twentieth Century Herod."

"Worse than the sinking was the exultation when the medal was struck in commemoration of the sinking," he said. "May the world see the inherent criminality of the foe. Germany is still unchanged. We must not relax our efforts until we destroy the evil spirit which planned and rejoiced in the crime."

PIN CROSSES ON FOUR WOUNDED AMERICANS

Three Lost Leg Each in Beating Off Pick of Germany's Shock Troops

By NEWTON C. PARKE.

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, May 5 (delayed).—In a beautiful chateau, which is now a hospital, near Verdun, a French general, accompanied by an American general this afternoon bestowed the French war cross upon Lieutenant Harry J. Kelly of Ottawa, Ill., and Privates Dewey J. Smith of Steens, Miss., George Hopkins of Baltimore, Md., and Aloysius Brown of No. 316 East Twenty-ninth street, Brooklyn, all for bravery in the recent raid by German shock troops south of Verdun.

Private Brown, who received the croix de guerre with the palm, was cited in an army order, while the others were mentioned in corps orders. Kelly, Hopkins and Brown each lost a leg.

Lieutenant Kelly's citation reads "Wounded in both legs and made prisoner by five Germans, this officer bravely defended himself and escaped with the aid of a few men who ran to his help. Wounded a second time, he had to pass the next night at the end of a trench before being removed."

Kelly is a reserve officer from Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Hopkins, who is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, has a son in France. His citation says

"He is a model of bravery. He was wounded while fighting at his post."

Brown is cited for "having valiantly performed his duty in the course of a German attack. He killed two Germans by his own hand."

This occurred when seven Germans demanded of Brown that he surrender. Brown as a reply killing two with his rifle.

Of Smith, the official citation says: "He is a soldier full of bravery. He was seriously wounded while fighting at his post."

The American General who attended the decoration ceremony said: "I am sorry to lose such good men, yet I am proud to know that they helped to defeat some of the best enemy troops."

All of the four wounded heroes are in cheerful spirits and have much praise for the cooking and nursing.

NINE-YEAR-OLD BOY IS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Peter Jablemeji, nine, of No. 146 Hemenway street, Back Bay, was struck and fatally injured today by an automobile owned and operated by Francis S. Snow of West Newton. The boy, who sustained a fractured skull, was taken to the City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Snow was arrested on a manslaughter charge. The accident took place at the corner of Westland avenue and Hemenway street.

ROWLEY WINS FAVOR IN A SNAPPY NEW STRAW

Attorney Clarence W. Rowley gave his sanction to the opening of the straw hat season today, by appearing on School street with a snappy new straw. The distinguished figure of the legal light, crowned, as it were, by a straw creation, attracted much attention, all favorable.

JEWISH WOMEN PLAN TO GREET MRS. SHONINGER

A reception to Mrs. Bernard Shoninger, wife of the former president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris, France, will be tendered by the Jewish women of Boston under the auspices of the Conference Board, of which Mrs. Daniel Frank is president, at Temple Israel, Commonwealth avenue, Saturday, May 11, at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Ely Feibelman is in charge of the meeting, with the following committees: Chairman of reception committee, Mrs. Felix Kornfeld; chairman of ushers, Mrs. Charles Wyzanski; chairman of music, Mrs. S. J. Dreyfus; chairman of hospitality, Mrs. I. Prager; chairman of printing, Mrs. William Rosenau; chairman of invitations, Mrs. J. Isaacs; chairman on decorations, Mrs. N. A. Pelensky; chairman on publicity, Mrs. Aaron Hallpern.

Mrs. Shoninger comes direct from Paris, where she has done some splendid work for the American boys. Her message will be of vital interest.

The speakers include Dr. Harry Levi, Mrs. Daniel Frank and Mrs. A. L. Fishel. The public is invited.

200 STATISTICIANS WANTED IN CAPITAL

Two hundred statisticians are urgently needed at once in Washington by the War Department. The salaries offered are $1,400 and $1,600, with a few positions at $1,800. The examination is open to both men and women, and includes sworn statements as to education and preliminary training, responsible experience and fitness. The requirements are common school education, with practical experience as a cost clerk, labor clerk or cost accountant in a plant engaged in the manufacture either of artillery ammunition, or of small arms, small arm ammunition, or small machine parts, together with a knowledge of the operation of the plant; or, a college education with one year's experience in statistical work of a high grade. For further information apply to the secretary of the U. S. Civil Service Board, Custom House, Boston.

War Bride Crossed Country on Train With Troops

By International News Service.

Chicago, May 7.—Mrs. Peggy Tait, University of Chicago "co-ed" war bride, is telling with great glee today how she outwitted army officers and traveled from Seattle, Wash., to New York on the same troop train as her husband, Corporal Fred Tait. She wore a soldier's uniform.

Mrs. Tait says she met her husband last Spring in Seattle and shortly afterward they were married. She joined him at the Camp where he was stationed and he got word that he was going to France. She donned a uniform and got on the train with her husband. Once she was put off, but hired an auto and caught up again and hid in the mess car. She wanted to stow away on the transport, but her husband balked at this. She came here to study.

DRAFTING OF IRISH HOME RULE BILL NEARLY DONE

London, May 7.—The drafting of the Irish Home Rule bill is nearly completed and its early introduction in Parliament is expected.

RINGGOLD, GEORGIA, MAN WRITES

A thankful letter about the benefits received from using Sulpherb Tablets. Its effects are like grandmother's remedy of sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses. But this consists of sulphur, cream of tartar and herbs, in a sugar-coated tablet, easy and pleasant to use, for bad blood, stomach, liver and bowel disorders.

Mr. John M. Plemons, Ringgold, Georgia, writes: "I had an awful bad case of stomach trouble and constipation, and had the service of a specialist with only temporary relief. I saw an advertisement of Sulpherb Tablets and began using them, and in a short time noted very good results, and I further used them, and at this time am perfectly well as far as I can tell. I don't recommend anything unless I receive some good results. Some friends use them and they also note good results, etc." Druggists sell Sulpherb Tablets everywhere. Don't take ordinary "sulphur" tablets and be disappointed.—Advertisement.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY CLEANSES YOUR KIDNEYS

For centuries GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been a standard household remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble, and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, headache, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall-stones, gravel, difficulty when urinating, cloudy and bloody urine, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago, all warn you to look after your kidneys and bladder. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

They are not a "patent medicine," nor a "new discovery." For 200 years they have been a standard household remedy. They are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, searching oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and through the bladder, driving out the poisonous germs. New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue the treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day; they will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the trouble.

Do not delay a minute. Delays are sexually dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. All druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. In three sizes, sealed packages. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL. Accept no substitutes.—Advertisement.

HOLD BROOKLYN MAN AS GERMAN PROPAGANDIST

New York, May 7.—Stephen Binder of Brooklyn was arrested when federal agents raided his butcher shop and home and seized hundreds of copies of a book entitled "Light and Truth," declared to contain German propaganda. Binder, who wore expensive clothing and carried a large sum of money, was held in $10,000 bail by Federal Commissioner McGoldrick on an espionage charge.

MARGARET LOTHROP TO DO WAR WORK IN FRANCE

Miss Margaret Lothrop, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Lothrop of this city and "The Wayside," Concord, is another American woman who has answered war's call. She is an instructor in economics and social service in Leland Stanford University, California, and has been given leave of absence. She has joined the women's unit of that university to do civilian war relief work in Europe, under the auspices of the Red Cross. The unit is composed of fifteen women graduates of the university, all specialized in certain lines.

ARMENIANS STARVE DESPITE HUGE FUND

New York, May 7.—Although $7,619,198.91 has been cabled to Constantinople during the past fourteen months for the relief of war-stricken Armenians and Syrians in Turkey, many women are still starving. Destitution and beggary are common on every hand, according to a cablegram received here yesterday by the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief. The message ended with a plea for the dispatch of further funds which are sent through the American State Department.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS MISSING MARY MacLANE

Chicago, May 7.—The whereabouts of Mary MacLane, famous as the author of "I, Mary MacLane," is still a mystery. Search for her revealed that she was last seen at the Blackstone Hotel, Saturday. Police doubt that any harm has come to her, as it is said she vanished once before in a similar manner.

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, TUESDAY, MAY 7, 1918. — LIBERTY

ARGUMENTS HOLD UP TRIAL OF OBJECTORS

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 7.—The field training tests of the infantry regiments in the 76th Division began here with the examination of the First Battalion of "Boston's Own," which was scheduled to be held in the fields and woods between the cantonment and Shirley.

The tests interfered with the trial of twenty conscientious objectors who were charged with refusing to obey an order issued by their commanding officer.

The first day of the trial was devoid of any sensational features, although marked by numerous clashes between counsel concerning the method of cross-examination and the admission of questions put to witnesses. Only two witnesses were heard and after more than three hours of arguments the court was adjourned to meet again at the call of the president, Colonel Frank Tompkins.

The men on trial were Privates Herman S. Abrahams, Holyoke; Gerald Decassa, Bridgeport, Ct.; William M. Gorson, Chelsea; Raymond G. Rushko, Bridgeport, Ct.; Joseph Karsak, Worcester; Nathaniel L. Mowray, Worcester; George Lambasis, Boston; Camalo Nicia, Springfield; Morris N. Paris, East Boston; Eric Platin, Everett; Louis Gurdus, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Francis N. Hennessy, Brighton; Hans Insburg, Boston; James W. R. Inglis, Dartmouth; Thomas Stoikin, New Haven; Roger E. Reed, East Brookfield; Gustavo A. Zeidler, Jr., Watervliet, N. Y.; Charles M. Teague, Gonic, N. H.; Jacob Schneider, Boston, and John J. Kassay.

Attorney George E. Roewer, Jr., of Boston was counsel for all of the prisoners with the exception of Mowray, who told the court that he preferred to plead his own case.

EDITORIAL

Mothers who have sons in the service at Camp Devens or at any other army post or naval station should be patriotic enough to not to write to their boys and request them to come home whether they receive permission from the proper authority or otherwise.

Soldiers and sailors in the service have enough to think about without having to worry about things at home. If the mothers who have been in the habit of urging their sons to absent themselves without leave from the army just for the sake of running home over a week-end realized how serious an offence it is and how much it meant to their sons, they would refrain from doing so.

They should understand their sons are doing their bits for Uncle Sam just like hundreds of thousands of other sons and that they are all treated alike and entitled to the same privileges and no more.

CIRCUS CLOWN IS LIFE OF MEN IN HOSPITAL

By BERT FORD
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, May 5 (Delayed).—Charles Klein, nineteen years old, of No. 159 Union street, Brooklyn, N. Y., a former circus clown, but now a private in the American Infantry, is not likely to return to his old outfit soon. Owing to the popularity of his amile and his skill as an entertainer in the hospital where American soldiers are recovering from gas poisoning, he has been nicknamed "Sunny Charles."

"Sunny Charles" had a narrow shave from death while acting as a courier recently. In telling of his experience, he said:

SOON LOST HIS LAUGH.

"I was sitting in a dugout when suddenly shells started screaming and whistling overhead. They made me happy and I laughed because they reminded me of the Fourth of July at home. Gee, what a racket there was! Pretty soon I was ordered to deliver a dispatch, and I had to ride like h— through a hot barrage fire. But I learn to smile then. The racket sounded as if a hundred boiler factories had broke loose. I put on full steam and my motorcycle leaped ahead like a kangaroo.

"Bing! A big shell burst only ten feet from my machine. Bang! Another shell exploded to the left of me and I put on more steam. Then still another whizzed directly over my head, but I kept going.

WORSE THAN CIRCUS MULE.

"Say, I rode a white mule in the circus that no one else could ride. He broke my arm and tattooed me with cuts and bruises. The mule's name was 'Snowball' and that animal seemed to have a hundred heels every time I got on her back. But, believe me, one Boche shell is worse than a hundred 'Snowballs.'

"It was the hardest work I ever did to dodge the holes in the road. Bing! A shell plunked behind me and ripped off my back tire. A piece of shrapnel knocked off my helmet, but it never touched me.

"Then I began to smell mustard gas. My eyes watered so that it was hard for me to see. I don't know how I did it, but I delivered my message. But when I woke up I was in a hospital.

"The first man I saw in the hospital that I knew was Foster. He was injured in battle. He hitched an Irish flag to his rifle and then charged the Germans when the order came. The boys now call him 'Irish' Foster. His father gave him the flag before we left camp in the States. Foster told me that he lost the flag in the battle and he is still grieving for it.

HIS GRIN IS CATCHING.

"The fellows soon heard that I had been a clown in a circus and soon had me doing stunts. Among other things I amused the boys by playing a tune with two spoons.

"Yes, army life is a great life if you don't weaken. The head doctor wants me to stay here.

"The orderly says my grin wakes up with the sun and rides along with it all day.

"However, I shall never forget that motorcycle ride. Those Boche shells are still humming a lullaby in my ears.

"Talk about bad mules in a circus! Mustard gas is mighty rough stuff. I'm telling you. And it don't help to make speed on a motorcycle either."

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF MONSIGNOR TEELING

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Arthur J. Teeling, D. D., rector of St. Mary's Church, Lynn, will have rounded out fifty years in the priesthood June 6, and the people of his parish are planning a fitting testimonial. The observance of his golden jubilee will last a week, and begin with the dedication of the St. Theresa Home for Girls, and end with a concert at which John McCormack will be the stellar attraction. Lillian Meagher, protegee of McCormack's, will be soloist at the pontifical mass offered by William, Cardinal O'Connell, the first day of the jubilee celebration.

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

BASEBALL PLANS HELD UP BY NEW RULE

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 7.—The action of the navy authorities in prohibiting collections at Sunday baseball games is likely to greatly curtail the plans that were being made for this season's games and limit the clubs to contests of a purely local character.

It had been proposed to form a league with teams representing the Navy Yard, the Receiving Ship, Newport, R. I., and Pelham Bay, N. Y., with two teams of army men from Camp Devens and one each from Camps Upton and Dix.

These teams were to have played not only at the home stations, but it was proposed that they should have given the people of some of the big inland cities, who do not ordinarily come in contact with many of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors, a chance to see something of the nations defenders and also enjoy a good ball game.

To have financed these games would have required some expenditure for athletic supplies and for traveling expenses. It is claimed that the money available from the government allotments for athletic activities and from the meagre profits of the canteens would hardly suffice for this purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS MINUS WIG; SPRING HAS COME

Washington, May 7. — Spring has come officially to the Senate. The infallible sign of the advent of Summer, the absence of Senator Thomas' wig, was present. After the Winter months have fled the Colorado Senator sheds his coupee, and members of the Senate accept this act as official authority for the purchase of Palm Beach suits and straw hats.

CHANCE FOR HARVARD MEN TO BE MARINE OFFICERS

The better clothing store

The Continental

Charles R Talbot Treas

Boylston at Washington — Franklin and Washington

YOU may be interested to know what we mean by a "better" clothing store; we call this new one, soon to be ready at Washington and Franklin Streets, "the better clothing store"

When we say "better" we're talking about ourselves more than any one else; our old stalwart store at Boylston Street is a good store; no reason why we shouldn't make this a better one; it's a good idea to compete with yourself in business

When we say "better" we don't mean the clothing we sell; Hart Schaffner & Marx clothing is to be sold at both stores In that respect these stores differ from all others in Boston; we're the only concern in town that sells these clothes There are very good reasons why we make special mention of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; we'll tell you our reasons later; you'll say they're good ones

The new store will be better, we believe, because it will do only one thing—sell nothing but fine clothing We hope it will be as good as the old store in the spirit of service to our customers; we hope it will be better; the idea in both stores is to try to help a man buy, rather than to try to get him to buy It really makes quite a difference to the man

We're going to try to show you things you'll want to buy; rather than things we want to sell For we want to sell all of them, of course; bought 'em to sell The main thing is what you want, not what we want

BRAVES AND DODGERS BATTLE

Old Rivals From Brooklyn to Show Here for the Next Three Days

By NICK FLATLEY.

Fat Wilbert Robinson and his Brooklyn Dodgers arrived in Boston today, prepared to give the Braves a final three-day preparation for the first invasion of the West. Where a short time back Wilbert and company were taking the dust of the Braves, they have latterly sailed out, and threaten to cut a figure in whatever race is left when the Giants get through.

The Dodgers, who looked bad at the start of the season, have been strengthened very recently by the addition of Zach Wheat, the man whom there is no much better outfielder.

The pitchers, too, have picked up wonderfully; for instance, Griner took a one-hit game yesterday, and Grimes got a three-blow victory for himself the other day.

Getting away from home is sort of looked forward to by the local outfit. They haven't been able to get going to please the local talent and feel that when they get away there will be less nervous strain, and consequently more chance to get going smoothly.

Even nature seems to be against the Braves these days.

Just when they apparently had the Giants beaten for the first time, a combination whirlwind, hurricane, monsoon, cloudburst, typhoon, deluge broke over the Home of Big Things.

The game, of course, was called, though there was too much dust flying for anybody to see the umpire wave "time." The Braves at the time had a two-run lead and it was the sixth inning, and the Braves were actually acting as though they thought they could turn the trick.

SAME OLD STORY.

Then nature's demonstration departed as quickly as it came, and the Braves seemed to realize that it was the same old world, after all. The Giants started knocking runs off the basco, and when the curtain was rung, the final count was 8 to 4 in favor of the champions of 1917, and incidentally 1918.

Hugh Canavan tossed his first big league game, and tossed mighty well. But for the sudden storm he might have gone through to victory, although he had the bases loaded up when the cataclysm arrived.

Even after things had been cleared up, he bade fair to escape, but Charles Lincoln Hersog made an unfortunate error, and a couple of rollers were safe on the slippery ground, and the Giants were in again and neare their desire to sew the race up right promptly.

Canavan was nicked safely thirteen times, but probably found some consolation in the fact that the Braves hammered Slim Sallee for an even dozen counters. Hugh, it might be mentioned, contributed a pair of these.

OL' SAL KEEPS GOING.

The gangling Giant southpaw wasn't the least bit flustered by the Brave bombardment, and, except in the third, when he was jumped on for three scores, went along like a real champion.

The game was a time sort of contest anyway you looked at it, but the "crowd" got a bit of a thrill when the Braves took their temporary lead, and young Canavan looked as if he was going to hop into sudden fame.

BRIGGS EXPECTS FORMAL GRID CONTESTS

"Personally we do not see any reason why football and other forms of athletics should not be participated in next Fall," declared Dean Briggs, following the meeting of Harvard A. A.

"This, of course, will depend almost entirely on the number of men in college. Whether our gridiron game next Fall will be formal or informal, is a matter that cannot be decided right now.

"The wishes of our intercollegiate friends, Yale and Princeton, no doubt will be those of ours, and a formal decision made only after consider the matter at length. At any rate, Harvard will do its utmost to continue athletics so far as it does not interfere with our national obligations."

The Harvard A. A. also voted that all students who finish their examinations this week, and expect to enter officers' camp, will be allowed to take part in athletics until they withdraw from college.

At a mass meeting in Assembly Hall, the students were addressed by the Rev. Father Meagher, director of athletics, and H. Bennett Murray, manager of the baseball team.

Father Meagher told the students to get behind the team and do all in their power to make May 15, when Holy Cross plays a return game at the Heights, a gala success.

IN CORBETT'S CORNER

by James J. Corbett.

This is the second of a series of articles which Mr. Corbett has written giving the inside details of the Gunboat Jess Jeffries-Jack Johnson fight at Carson City, Nev. The story comes from Jack Gleason, "The Man Behind," and forms one of the most romantic chapters in pugilism. Many of the details which this series of articles discusses never before have been published. The next chapter will appear tomorrow.

Just as the theatrical manager was about to throw the idea of getting Jeffries before the public as a stage star into the discard, a friend of his said:

"There's only one man who can put this thing over for you and that man is Jack Gleason. (At that time Gleason was the owner of the San Francisco (Pacific Coast League) club. The big fellow is very fond of Gleason and if anybody can influence him, it is this same Gleason."

So the theatrical man went to Jack Gleason and said:

"I am willing to pay Jim Jeffries $2,000 for a week's appearance in my theatre. I have sounded out Jeffries concerning this proposition and he is opposed to it. I am coming to you as the last resort. Will you do me the favor of going to Los Angeles and submitting the thing to him?"

Two hours later Gleason boarded a train for Los Angeles and the next afternoon hunted up Jim Jeffries.

"Jeff was not in a very receptive mood at first. He thought about 500 pounds 'us was not keen about de'ng any active work. Of co'se, he realized that a pu'ely exhibition on the stage wasn't going to call for much e'fort, but just the same, it spelled work to him. And Jeffries had enough money laid aside right then to keep him comfortable for the rest of his days.

MRS. JEFF WAS WILLING.

"However, I was mightily interested in Jeff himself. Although he was out of condition, I figured that he might, with the training of more than a year, whip himself into such shape that he could take on Johnson. The problem was to get him started. It was my belief that if he went on the stage for one week at the Wigwam Theatre that the venture would prove a financial success and would lead other theatrical producers to offer good contracts to Jeffries.

"I felt that having started, the big fellow would keep right at it, and that through his method of training for his bouts on the stage he would gradually whip himself into fair fighting condition. And it would be just a few jumps from then to get him into the mood where he would sign up articles for a fight with Johnson.

"I argued for the greater part of twenty-four hours with Jeff, but all the while he remained obdurate. Finally I suggested that he put the matter up to Mrs. Jeffries, knowing all the time that Mrs. Jeff's was very much in favor of Jeff's acceptance of the theatrical offer. So Jeff said he would do so, and talked the matter over with his wife. A few minutes later he came to me and said:

"'Well, I guess it's all right, Mrs. Jeffries is for it, so I'll sign the contract. Give me your fountain pen.

"And then Jeffries signed the papers."

BIG MOVE FOR THEATRE.

When it was announced that the Wigwam Theatre had contracted to pay Jim Jeffries a salary of $3,000 for a one week appearance, the other theatrical folks in San Francisco were aghast.

But the manager of that Wigwam correctly figured the great drawing power of Jeffries and although he paid the champion a record sum for a one week appearance he cleared thousands of dollars for himself through Jeffries' appearance.

"Big Jeff" drew a crowded house to every performance during his appearance at the Wigwam, which was in January, 1909. Folks in San Francisco wanted to see him and to get a line on his condition through workouts on the stage. So they jammed into the Wigwam in an endless stream.

HUB GLOVESMEN TOP BIFF BILL AT ARENA

TONIGHT'S CARD AT ARENA

Main bout: Joe Eagan of Dorchester, vs. Tommy Robson of Malden. 152 pounds at 3 p. m., 12 rounds.

Semi-final: Johnny Noonan of Dorchester, vs. Johnny Buckley of South Boston, 131 pounds ringside, eight rounds.

Second preliminary: Mike Castle of Lawrence, vs. Johnny Kellard of Commonwealth Pier, six rounds.

Curtain-raiser: Young Bruso of Weymouth, vs. Johnny Gray of Chelsea, six rounds.

Referees: Larry Conley and Maffie Flaherty.

Starting time: 8 p. m.

By J. P. MURPHY.

Just about a year ago, Joe Eagan of Dorchester left these parts, with none too brilliant a record behind him. He bobbed up in the Middle West, surprised the boxing world by stopping his first three opponents inside the limit and became a Milwaukee idol over night.

Tonight Eagan returns to home surroundings, a greatly improved battler. He's here to show Boston their followers what confidence will do for a fellow and also to settle a long standing argument with Tommy Robson of Malden, whom he meets in the feature twelve round set-to at the Arena.

Just how successful Eagan is in his quest of new honors remains to be seen. As far as winning from Robson is concerned, Joe is supremely confident he has it all sewed up now. His one ambition is to land victory in the knockout route.

Comparisons give Eagan the edge. Joe defeated and drew with Bryan Downey, Western flatic sensation, who in turn, outclassed Robson when they met in the Hub. But comparisons, as has often heap proven, mean little in the world of swat.

It's a cinch that Robson will do his utmost to go "over the top." He knows full well that a victory over Eagan means a fresh start in briffdom, and, incidentally, recognition in the territory where Eagan has been collecting the shekels with ruthless abandon. All of which has stirred Tommy's fighting spirit as never before.

The boys have contracted to make 152 pounds at 3 p. m. This should be an easy figure for both. Eagan has been scaling in around 150 for practically all his battles in the Middle West, and most of the time has been under this mark. He tipped the beam at 149½ ringside the night he fought Ted (Kid) Lewis.

Johnny Noonan of Dorchester, now in the service of Uncle Sam, meets Johnny Buckley of South Boston, in the eight semi-final at 131 pounds ringside. There will be the usual two six-rounders.

CALLAHAN AND CHANEY PUT UP BUSY BATTLE

Philadelphia, May 7.—Frankie Callahan of Brooklyn, and George Chaney of Baltimore, put up one of the fastest lightweight skirmishes of the season. Their six rounds fairly bristled with speed.

Honors were claimed by each battler, but the bulk of the fans figured their encounter just about an even thing.

Duboys Shines on Court

The Harvard 1921 tennis team defeated Milton Academy, five matches to one. Hanighen was the star for Harvard. Duboys of Milton registered a surprise by defeating Gerald Caner, brother of the former intercollegiate singles' champion.

TWO TIDY MAT PAIRS SIGNED UP BY TUOHEY

With a double-header, in which Cyclone Rena meets John Kilonis and Professor Mainfort opposes Joe Shimkus, wrestling fans appear to be in line for a treat Thursday night at the Grand Opera House.

Shimkus is an aggressive performer, very powerful, with a rough science that should show Mainfort's ability from another angle. They will go a one out fall finish. The Rena-Kilonis bout will be the best two out of three.

HARVARD GOLF TEAM TOO CLASSY FOR GREEN

The Harvard golf team defeated Dartmouth, four matches to one, on the Woodland Club links. The best match of the day was between Whittemore of Harvard, and Emerson, Dartmouth's captain. The former won 2 to 1. Mank landed Dartmouth's only match.

Al Wiltsae Wins Set-to

Westfield, May 7.—Al Wiltsae, Hartford Ct., lightweight, outpointed Bobby Reines of New Britain, Ct., in ten rounds.

RED SOX FIGHT TO MAKE UP LOST GROUND

Manager Barrow Banking on Two Out of Three From the Senators

Washington, May 7.—Ed Barrow has his Red Sox in town for three soirees with the Senators.

The Boston party is badly peeved over losing three straight to the Yankees, over in New York, and Big Ed will go way up in the air if his athletes don't bag at least two decisions here.

The forenoon pitching forecast was: Dutch Leonard vs. Walter Johnson or Harry Harper.

To hear Barrow tell it, the cards ran against the Red Sox badly when they dropped the final combat to the peppery clan of Huggins, 10 to 2.

Although they wounded Meg-ridge, one of Miller Huggins' best hurlers, for ten safe wallops, they were unable to bunch them to advantage, while lucky drives helped the Yankees to pile up their big total.

Babe Ruth covered first base in place of Hobitzel, and handled the job in perfect form. Hobby was out of the game on account of a badly swollen thumb which he received in Saturday's game.

Ruth pounded in the first run of the game in the fourth frame, when he landed the pill for a homer, which netted the second tier of the right field grandstand.

Big Babe was on the ball every time he came up to bat, and slammed out four of the wallops that would have been homers had they edged a little closer to the base line. On his last two trips to the plate he hit hard, but both liners went straight into Pipp's hands.

Errors by Schang and Agnew in the last half of the fourth proved costly to the Red Sox. It is doubtful if New York would have been more than one run if it had been compelled to earn them.

Boddie had a big day. He drove in five runs, scored one and showed plenty of pep on the bases. Baker, Pipp and Peckinpaugh also made it hard on Mays and Jones. The chubby Carl was not an effective hurler and retired in the midst of the fifth canto.

STALLINGS SENDS TWO OF HIS ROOKIES AWAY

Manager Stallings of the Braves has started to clean house. Tom Hughes, pitcher, and Bill Bailey, young outfielder of promise, who came up from Washington at Lee Keyser's and Willard McGraw, rookie catcher, Toronto gets Bailey and Jersey City lands Hughes. Stallings is keeping a string on the two youths.

Pitcher Dana Fillingim, former Mackits, who comes to the tribe via Indianapolis, is also on deck.

Coverleski and Cal Crum, has reported for duty. Furman, University of Vermont shabster, is also on deck.

NEW CLASS AA LEAGUE IS READY FOR OPENING

Auburn, N. Y., May 7.—President John H. Farrell of the New International League announces that everything is in readiness for the opening of the season tomorrow. Baltimore, Newark, Jersey City and Binghamton make the leagurals.

The magnates have agreed that if any of the clubs close the season with a balance on the credit side of the ledger, it will be invested in government bonds.

BRAVES BOOK DAY FOR GRIFF'S POPULAR FUND

When the Pittsburgh Pirates make their season's bow to the Braves Field turn a substantial portion of the receipts will be turned over to Clark Griffith's Baseball Relief Fund, which has written President Haughton, stating that the money received will be used in buying baseball paraphernalia for the Greater Boston boys at the front.

MOORE GIVES WELLING WEIGHT AND A BEATING

Baltimore, May 7.—Pal Moore, of Memphis, Tenn., outpointed Joe Welling of New York, in a fast ten-round bout; Joe Burman, of Chicago, knocked out Young Mende, of Buffalo, in the ninth round, while Young Johnny Dundee won a decision over Dave Astey of New York.

Ratner Holds His Own With Wilson, But Decision Goes to Charlestown Boy

Johnny Wilson of Charlestown was awarded the decision over Augie Ratner of New York, in the main bout of twelve rounds at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea.

Wilson did by far the cleaner hitting of the two, particularly during the first half of the melee, but as far as points went, Ratner was way in front and many believed that Referee Dick Fleming would not have been stepping out of bounds if he had declared the skirmish a draw.

Wilson piled up a shade in the first five rounds, but Ratner soon by means of a right jab and stinging left hook, but once Ratner got his heartbeat he simply danced around Wilson, landing his left at will, while Wilson turned circles in the middle of the ring.

Tommy Elm of Paterson, N. J., continued on his winning streak by knocking out Johnny Martin of New York in the second round in the semi-final. He proved entirely too clever and aggressive for the Gotham lad and wobbled Martin off his feet before he was able to get started.

Bobby Dyson of New Bedford, making his appearance in the ring after a month's lay-off, outclassed Buddy Dolan of Lawrence, in six rounds. Dolan substituted for Jack Troy of Albany, N. Y. Young Cross of Lynn made quick work of Paddy Duffy of Chelsea in the curtain-raiser, stopping his foe in the third round.

PURE BLOOD

From the blood all the solid tissues take their food and nourishment. Unless the blood is pure the healing conditions it affects the entire body. If you have dry, rough skin, pimples on the face, swollen tonsils, sore throat; if the joints become swollen and stiff; if you have catarrh and feel all stuffed up; if you cannot eat right, think right or work right, you need S. S. S. Nothing else will relieve you. It is a purely basic blood remedy. BIG 3 TO TAKE UP FOOTBALL REVIVAL

Harvard-Yale-Princeton Conference on Gridiron Game Likely to Come Up Soon

Although the Harvard-Princeton-Yale football conference, which was scheduled for Friday night here, was temporarily given up, indications are that it will take place next week.

The three universities are not ready to make a decision on framing a definite schedule and outlining other specific plans for the gridiron sport for next Fall, but believe that they must come to some sort of an understanding before the Spring terms of the institutions close in about two weeks.

It is understood that Harvard is decidedly averse to giving definite assurances that football will be played next Fall.

Dean Briggs has asserted that the present arrangement for continuing sports is simply an informal one, while Yale and Princeton have regarded the matter as the beginning again of all major sports under restricted conditions.

While Yale and Princeton are ready to assist their willingness to try to arrange football games for next Fall, they will do so only with a proviso that if, when college reopens next Fall, either wishes to cancel the arrangement it shall be free to do so.

It is understood here that the attitude felt and taken at Harvard is that it may be better to wait till next Fall before anything definite is discussed relative to football.

All three universities are ready, however, to pledge themselves not to attempt any Summer practice whatever.

The attitude expressed by members of the Yale athletic board of control is that the games must be played without extravagant features of any sort. Large crowds are not expected, and no attempt will be made to attract the attention of the public.

Paid coaches will be forbidden and the athletic trainers at all three universities will be appealed to by both the Athletic Association of the government and by the Y. M. C. A. to care for men in the service before Fall.

The Four of Hearts

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND LOVE

Milton Asks Dora to Explain the Mystery of the Darkened Room, But Is Interrupted

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LL

Copyright, 1918, by Star Co.

"WELL?"

Dora Livingstone looked at Milton Van Saun defiantly. "What is it that you want to say to me?"

The man did not speak at once, but stood looking down into the fire, his brows knit.

"You are not very talkative now that we are alone," his companion challenged. "What's the matter? Does my august presence seal your lips?"

He turned towards her impatiently. "Dora, you make it hard for me to talk to you frankly. I never know just how you are going to take things."

"What things?"

"Why"—awkwardly—"some questions I want to ask you."

"Because you don't ask them, perhaps," she suggested. "But you spoke awhile ago as if you had some important matter on your mind, yet now that you have a chance to put it into words you seem to have forgotten all about it."

"I have not forgotten it," he denied. "Only I think perhaps I will ask Stewart instead."

He watched the effect of his words and saw the girl start slightly, as if taken by surprise. Yet in another instant she smiled.

"Well, do as you please about that," she said. "It is evident that the subject on which you wanted to consult me does not concern me, especially if you could consult Gerald just as well about it."

Milton came close to her and laid his hand on her shoulder, heading over her as he might have bent over a child with whom he wished to reason sensibly.

"Dora," he said slowly, "listen to me. Why are you going to marry me?"

Her eyes wavered under his steady gaze.

"Do stand up straight or sit down, please, Milton," she commanded. "You make me nervous leaning over me like that."

She waited until he had drawn a chair by hers and had sat down. Then she looked at him squarely.

A Bitter Question

"I am going to be guilty of a Yankee trick and answer your question by asking another. Why are you going to marry me, Milton?"

"It is late in the day for you to ask me that, my dear," he told her. "Had I not cared enough for you to want to marry you, I would not have asked you to be my wife."

"Well, does not the same reason apply to my acceptance of you?" she argued.

He hesitated, and when he spoke it was with an effort, as if he had suddenly determined to learn the truth.

"Dora," he asked, "do you love me—or is there some one else?"

"Some one else!" Her exclamation was hardly louder than a whisper, but it carried a world of meaning.

"Yes," he said, "is there?"

She threw back her head and laughed. "What a silly question! No—I do not know any other man who would take me if you threw me over tomorrow!" she said harshly.

"That is not true, dear," he remarked. "I know there are men who admire you, and who, but for the fact of your engagement to me, would ask you to marry them. But that is not what I meant. I want you to tell me if there is anybody you would rather marry than me—if there is any man whom you love better than me."

"As nobody seems to love me as much as you do, it is unkind of you to intimate that I have bestowed my affection somewhere unasked." Dora teased. "Come, Milton—you and I have never been silly and sentimental. We have prided ourselves on this fact. Let us not begin to be foolish now. We have always been good chums. Neither of us loves the other madly. But I have always understood that that kind of affection is not essential to marriage. Mother says it is not; so does father."

She had risen as if to end the discussion, and now started toward the door. But Milton followed her and checked her.

"Dora," he said brusquely, taking her hand in his, "you must not go until I have finished what I started out to say."

She looked up at him, waiting.

"I have heard," he went on, "something that has decided me to learn the truth, if possible. Where were you on the afternoon of the day that Stewart and Cynthia became engaged?"

"I was at home!" she said desperately, struggling to release her hand from his grasp. "I was at home all that day with a bad headache. I don't know what you mean."

"Then I will tell you," he said. "Your mother saw Stewart standing in here in the firelight with a girl. His arm was about her and her head was on his shoulder."

Her Head High

The color was slowly ebbing from her cheeks, but she held her head high.

"And what of that?" she demanded. "Why do you tell me about it? Was it not perfectly right and proper for Gerald to have his arm about the waist of the girl to whom he had just proposed marriage? I am surprised that you talk of such a thing, Milton."

"I would not," he said gravely, "if I had not learned that your mother got home at half past three that afternoon. Cynthia did not leave my father until——"

"He stopped as a hurried step sounded in the hall and the portieres were suddenly jerked apart by Mr. Livingstone.

"Milton," he announced, excitedly, "they have telephoned from your house. You are wanted at once. Your father has had what they fear is a stroke of paralysis."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Hard to Decide

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a widower aged thirty-five years and have a boy and two girls aged 6, 8 and 10, respectively. I have become very much infatuated with a sweet and attractive girl aged seventeen years, who appears to be in love with me. I have laid bare to her my entire family history, but in spite of my children and my age she persists. Do you believe her love merely a youthful fantasy or do you believe it will be stable and lasting love if marriage should result. Second, do you believe that the difference in ages would act as a barrier to a happy marriage?

C. J. R.

OF course, I who have seen neither you nor the girl can give only a general judgment as to her real feelings. My impression is that when a seventeen-year-old girl cares for any man, it is likely to be a real, substantial affair and rather untrustworthy affair. Then when you add that the object of the girl's affection is twice her age and has a child only seven years younger than the child who thinks she loves him—it all looks as if the lasting affection of the girl's affection ought not be counted on too much. It isn't the difference in ages which militates against the happiness of such a marriage—it is the difference in experience! You are a mature man who has known youth and love and marriage and fatherhood with its responsibilities. She is a light-hearted child to whom love is a fanciful creation of dreams. Is it fair to trade on her emotions? Is it fair to give your children a mother so young? Can she understand your ambitions and share your enjoyments? Will you find pleasure in the things she does? Are there things that you can talk about together—are you congenial or must you rely on love making or stimulation of some sort to keep you contented with each other and happy together?

"Camouflage"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service.

BEFORE ever the word was born to call it by, it was a thin veil on the first woman's face, and a dear familiar to her.

When the girl to whom you are pouring out words in a delighted prattle listens in leaning rapture and understanding, silent, enthralled; puts back her head in wordless admiration of you, or 'pears to; half closes her eyes in fascination, with a smile of dreamy pleasure curling her mouth—held by your eloquence; and her seeming enslavement is only a play—to lose herself in the ghostly caress of the man she loves, who turns in his march beneath the fluttering raveled standard through the smoke and flame of Springtime in northern France, to touch her face—that's Camouflage! The lifted face and dreaming eyes and raptured mouth are not for you.

But you gaze on and believe what you see! Eve paints her face with many patterns—and hides her naked soul in the very lines of them. She smiles into your eyes with her own like stars, and that very radiance that seems so meant for you, is her surest concealment of the face that leans between yours and hers, and the heart on her sleeve.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

WE are all going to have a cunning little cottage at the Oshun this summer, sed Ma to Pa last nite. Caver on the Jersey coast, she sed.

I luv the sound-ing Sea, sed Pa. I will go to any place you pick out for us, sed Pa.

I just know you wud say that, sed Ma, you are a dear old boy, sed Ma. Missus Hendrix and Madeline and Carolyn and Marian and all of us are going to the Sea shoar this summer.

That will be fine, sed Pa, there is sumthing majestic about the oshun as it cums rolling in and telling its tale of woe to the hard harted rocks on the shoar, sed Pa. I have always luved the Oshun since I was a boy and shipped beer four the mast, sed Pa.

I never knowed you was a sailor boy, I sed to Pa.

I have been many things, Bobby, sed Pa. Wild and roaming was my early life, Pa sed. I have faced both in a hundred different forms, sed Pa, and I doant believe I ever trembled onst, sed Pa.

I wish I cud face them dangers like you, I sed to Pa.

Them wild ruff days is past, sed Pa. The men now are gentel and calm, espeshully caver in Yurup, sed Pa. Wen you grow up, Bobbie, sed Pa, the only dangers you will have to face will be the danger of not erning enuff munny to buy food. Food is rapidly getting to be like dimonds and perls, sed Pa, or nuggets of gold. I think it wud be a good idee for all of us to talk a little farm this summer and raise spuds, sed Pa, spuds and tarnips, etc. No matter what else happens, sed Pa, Man must eet and keep on eeting.

We are going to have a big garden, sed Ma. That part of it is all planned, and you can dig it all up beefour we plant the seeds, sed Ma.

I see, sed Pa, that is all I have to do, dig up the ground. Well, sed Pa, I am reddy to do my bit with a shuvvel, even if I am too old to shoulder a gun. I hoap that when you ladies pick out the place you are going at the sea shoar, sed Pa, you will find a place near a bowling alleyway, sed Pa.

Why a bowling alleyway, sed Ma. For exer-else, sed Pa.

I thot you were going to shuvvel & malk garden, sed Ma. That will be exer-else enuff for you, my heero, sed Ma.

A bowling alleyway is grate sport, tho, sed Pa. It keeps the married men from going in to the city nites, if they have a bowling alleyway rite at the sea-shoar.

Then we will have it, sed Ma, it is part of our plan to keap our noabel husbands rite at our side if we go to the Oshun for the Summer.

Can I have a pig? I asked Ma.

Certingly, sed Pa, you can have ten pigs. That is the way to git salt pork, sed Pa, to talk the pigs down neer the Oshun. There they breathe the salt air, sed Pa, & in the Fall, sed Pa, they are all reddy to eet. There is no moar noabler work, sed Pa, than pree-paring food for mankind.

Peepul must have ideels higher than Food, sed Ma.

I know, sed Pa, but if peepul doant have Food in there stummicks they cant have ideels in there heds. Food & our Flag forever, sed Pa.

A Sugar Substitute

The deficiency of sugar in the Turin district of Italy has created an incentive for studying the question of substitutes, and the Italian government has caused to be manufactured a type of loaf sugar combined with saccharine. The question of obtaining sweetened substitutes from plants and fruits has naturally been studied by chemists, and a new product termed "honey of grapes" has been produced by a special process and patented apparatus by Professor Monti. By means of this process a grape sugar resembling honey is secured through evaporation. It has a great advantage over other sugar substances in that it contains no water and therefore does not change in quality even if kept for a long period.

Puss in Boots Jr.

By David Cory

YOU remember in the last story that Puss Junior and little Blue Eyes had left the Little Men of the Wood. Well, by and by, little King Blue Eyes saw the castle of his father. And the reason he knew it was because his dwarf friend had shown it to him one day when they had wandered a long way from the forest.

Now, when little King Blue Eyes and Puss reached the castle they found it in an uproar, for the king was dead and some wicked lords were striving amongst themselves to get control of his country. So Puss and little Blue Eyes crept into the garden, and there on a bench sat a beautiful maiden weeping bitterly.

"Why do you weep?" asked Puss, tiptoeing up to her.

"Because," answered the maiden, "my father is dead these seven days while his lords quarrel among themselves as to who shall govern over his lands."

And just then, all of a sudden, those wicked lords rushed out of the castle and ran into the garden. "They will kill me," cried the maiden, "for they fear I will lay claim to my father's kingdom."

"Let us hide in this forest," said Puss, so the three of them ran out of the garden and by and by they were safe among the trees. And then King Blue Eyes blew upon a little silver horn, and pretty soon the little Men of the Forest hastened to them, and when he told them what was the matter, they said, "Come and rule over us again, for you have a tender heart and we fear you no longer."

"And I shall marry the maid, and she shall be Queen Blue Eyes!" he asked.

"That is impossible," said his friend, the little dwarf, "for she is your sister." And then, of course, King Blue Eyes was very much surprised, for until now he had not known that he had a sister. And while they all stood around talking and wondering what would happen next, a woodcutter came by and asked what was the trouble. And when they told him he said: "This maid is not the daughter of the Queen, but of a poor peasant woman, for when the Queen lost her baby boy she adopted this child for her own. And this is why there is so much confusion at the castle, for they say she has no right to rule over the country. Therefore they are all laying claim to the kingdom." And then the woodcutter went on his way, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Foreign Grapes in Ireland.

A short time ago a much-traveled sea captain was in Ireland and was attracted by some grapes which he was certain were similar to those he had known in California as "Mission" grapes, so called because they were introduced into that country by Spanish missionaries. Being interested in the subject, he pursued his inquiries and found that his surmise was correct. The grapes were grown from cuttings of vines which formed part of the cargo of the Spanish Armada. Before their similarity to those of California, both being of Spanish origin. This beautiful fruit flourishes in a sheltered valley on the western side of Lough Swilly, where no frost has nipped the vines for five years, although frequently snow is visible on the distant hills.

A Wealth of Forestry

The coast forests of southern and southeastern Alaska are included in the national forests of Tongass and Chugach, which comprise over ninety-six million acres, a large proportion of which is covered with trees. Of these Sitka spruce averages about 20 per cent, and western hemlock about 76 per cent. The spruce are occasionally six feet in diameter and 250 feet tall. The interior forests are practically all found in the drainage basins of the Yukon and Kuskokwim Rivers, and it is estimated that there are 40,000,000 acres bearing trees large enough for cordwood and logs.

Mother and School Child

THE MATTER OF PUTTING UP LUNCHES

Every Mother Should Prepare Substantial and Nutritive Food in Appetizing Form for the Little Ones

By Loretto C. Lynch

(Instructor War Time Cookery, N. Y. Evening High School for Women.)

THE housewife's duties are indeed manifold and it is to be remarked that many women with so little training are willing to attack the job with such bravery. It is gratifying to a newspaper to feel it is helping these fine souled earnest women to improve every phase of their work.

It is a genuine pleasure to receive requests for information from so many housewives who simply "know that they don't know." For when any woman admits that she "knows that she don't know" she has automatically taken the first step toward progress.

I am in receipt of a letter from a poor foreign mother who tells me that her child's mates shun her—they laugh at the lunch she brings. She goes on to tell me that she doesn't know how to put up an "American school lunch" and she asks for help.

Put Up in Hurry

I can describe to her just about the lunch the obedient child of foreign parentage of ten brings to school. It is always wrapped in the paper sack in which the morning rolls come or a bit of newspaper. It has been "put up" in a great hurry.

Among the lunches I have seen is the one containing doubtful looking herring surrounded by dripping beets and a few cloves and bits of bay leaf. With this goes a "chunk" of cheese and a "hunk" of bread. There is always a decaying banana, sometimes a piece of cheap cake.

And the sensitive little soul feels more deeply than words can describe, the titterings and side remarks of the catty little girl whose mother "knows how" to put up a lunch.

To begin with, when children take lunch every day it should be planned just as any other meal. Much of it can be gotten ready the night before, thus relieving the busy mother in the morning.

A box or basket will be needed. Little girls carrying tiny baskets of lunch always remind one of Little Red Riding Hood. Baskets seem a bit more sentimental than boxes. But a collapsible box or paper box is better for a boy who wants no "excess baggage" while he plays "Kan the Kaiser" after lunch. For the benefit of the reader, let me remark that this game is decidedly more strenuous than checkers.

A quantity of waxed paper and some paper napkins should be on hand. A small, clean, cold cream jar and a tiny spoon will be found convenient for carrying a few freshly sugared berries or a little marmalade or jam or a few spoonfuls of pudding or apple sauce.

A careful child will delight in taking care of a pint hot-cold bottle. In this may be carried a hot drink of cocoa or malted milk on chilly days or some homemade ice cream or ices on warm days.

The sandwich, however, is usually the main bit of food in the lunch box. It is best made from day-old bread, sliced in quarter-inch slices. The butter, before being spread, should be creamed with a spoon, just as one does in making cake.

There are a large variety of fillings for sandwiches. Meat, fish and eggs, as well as beans, peas and cheese, are among the more hearty fillings. It is almost always better to chop the filling very fine before spreading it on the bread, for little folks' teeth have a habit of loosening, and not being as useful as they might be during early school years, and sometimes in their haste to "get through luncheon and play" they swallow the whole slice of meat after giving it a bite or two.

If you use canned salmon or tuna or sardines or shrimp, remove bones, skin, oil and shell. Chop fine the edible portion, season and moisten with melted butter or mayonnaise. When mayonnaise is used in a filling, it will not be necessary to butter the bread.

In many cases the sandwiches may be prepared the night before, carefully wrapped in wax paper and placed in the refrigerator. The fruit may likewise be cleaned and wrapped and stored and the lunch box be left uncovered to air.

Mushy Cake

If you must feed your child "mushy" layer cake or "squashing" pie, don't inflict it upon the school lunch box. Not only does it become uninviting to look upon after the child has carried it about in the box, but it has the inclination to "mess up" the other foods as well as the box itself.

And when these youngsters grow up not one of them will be willing to receive or give the awful looking "messes" I see laborers drag forth as luncheons when the noon whistles blow.

One of the less noticeable signs of Americanization is the quality and appearance of the lunch box. And it is pleasant to have a foreign-born woman anxious to know how to improve her child's lunch box.

ARE YOU STILL YOUNG AT HEART?

Then Why Look Older Than You Feel?

Every woman is as young as she looks, so why let sentiment or prejudice prevent your keeping youthful as long as you wish?

Not long ago many women would not use face powders or cosmetics. Today, practically every woman knows their merits and uses them. This is equally true of the hair color restorer. Thousands of women keep their hair that beautiful youthful Oban Hair Color Restorer. It is not a dye, but a delightful toilet preparation which brings back the color and gloss as gradually and evenly as the natural renewing of the hair itself.

Q-ban will not stain the scalp, wash or rub off, and does not interfere with washing or waving the hair. Keeps it glossy and healthy. Guaranteed to satisfy or money refunded.

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL

By Brice Belden, M. D.

ALCOHOL is a narcotic and not a stimulant. It dulls the feelings, so that a person who is ill may feel better after its use, not because he has been stimulated, but because he has been doped. Blood pressure is actually lowered by it.

Alcohol blunts the higher faculties "which harass us with care for the future and a too sensitive self-consciousness for the present." Consequently it results in a sense of carelessness, indifference or bodily and mental comfort. This explains its charm.

Some authorities, like Hare, Jacobi and Beverley Robinson, believe that in certain circumstances the physician may take advantage of the soothing effects of alcohol, but the great weight of professional opinion is emphatically against its use in any circumstances.

The use of alcohol to "protect" one against exposure is a pure delusion, disaster being actually invited thereby. One feels warmer after taking it simply because the small blood vessels of the skin are paralyzed, the stagnated blood producing a surface warmth while the internal temperature is lowered, which, of course, threatens the integrity of the vital organs.

There is almost a unanimous opinion on the part of experts that alcohol in any form lowers the defence of the body against the invasion of the germs of disease. It has played an undeniable part in the causation of tuberculosis.

There is nothing in the claim that the poisonous effects of alcohol are modified or reduced according to the degree of dilution. Alcohol is alcohol, whether in wine, beer or spirits. Dr. Belden has said is that there is difficulty in getting a very large dose of alcohol in a moderate period in the case of dilute solutions of alcohol such as beer.

Alcohol has been claimed to be a food, but if it is a food it must be such in a very restricted sense, insufficient to offset its drawbacks as a producer of disease.

Alcoholic beverages are in no way necessary for a healthy life.

In no circumstances should people whose nervous systems are unstable use alcohol, for they are the most likely to be harmed by this seductive poison.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hair disappears. Avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.—Advertisement.

$15 CARNIVAL TO END BASEBALL FUND DRIVE

This is the last week of the drive for the Boston AMERICAN'S Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

Five days more remain in which New England has a chance to put this fund over the top as far, proportionately, as it has boosted the Liberty Loan. The final windup of the campaign will take place at the Boston Arena on Saturday night next, when a monster pageant and carnival, which will include a repetition of Mrs. Butler's May festival, is to be held.

This affair is to be one of the greatest entertainments ever held in this city. Besides the repetition of Mrs. Butlers festival, there will be a big program, including Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls and 600 of Mrs. Butler's festival girls in a mammoth chorus, singing "The Star Spangled Banner," with Mrs. Wilhelmina Wright Calvert. More than 1,200 children will participate in this stirring event.

The sixty-piece band of "Boston's Own," the 101st Regiment from Camp Devens, is to furnish the music for this event and also for the singing of the new song, written by John Mogan, formerly of the Boston Opera company, and J. Frederick Oakley, and dedicated to the Boy Scouts, entitled "The Boy Scouts of the U. S. A."

The performance will give the audience an opportunity to see again many of the favorites who have endeared themselves to Boston through Mrs. Butler's festival.

Mrs. Butler has kindly allowed the repetition of her entire festival as it was produced last Saturday night at Mechanic's Building, in aid of the AMERICAN'S Camp Devens fund.

Those who saw the original will gladly see it again, especially in connection with the other features which accompany it. Boston society has heartily approved the affair, and many well-known Back Bay families are represented either as patronesses or as participants in the performance.

The aisles will be under the charge of Vincent Club girls selected for this duty by Miss Elizabeth Bennett, president of the Vincent Club.

Governor and Mrs. McCall and party, and Mayor and Mrs. Peters have positively announced their intention of occupying boxes and prominent military and naval officials have been invited.

The boxes are selling very fast, and many prominent society women are serving as patronesses.

The number includes Miss Rose L. Dexter, Mrs. Henry F. Bigelow, Miss E. L. Paine, Miss Fanny P. Mason, Mrs. Walter C. Bayliss, Miss Evelyn Sears, Mrs. Edward Clark Streeter, Mrs. Henry Hunnewell, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, Jr., Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr., Mrs. Lester Leland, Mrs. Gorham Brooks.

ASK STOVE MEN TO TAKE UP FARMING

"Men in the stove industry are to be asked to conscript the employes to farm labor in Massachusetts for the coming year, so serious is the outlook for the farmer. Plans are now being formulated by the Department of Labor, co-operating with the Department of Agriculture.

A reply is expected within a week, and men at the head of the labor drive confidently expect that the stove labor will be put entirely at their disposal.

The manufacture of stoves is slack at present. And all because the god Mars has pushed poor little Cupid into the shade, for a little while.

"People aren't getting married any more," say the authorities at the State House—"or if they are, they are living with his or her folks. The boy is either drafted or in the service and expecting to leave within a day, a few weeks or months, as the case may be. They marry perhaps—but they don't start housekeeping, and they don't buy stoves. So the stove industry is suffering.

"There are plenty of men in this profession who could be released for farm work. We want them to enroll for call when needed to work for the summer, or permanently, providing an agreeable wage scale can be settled with the farmer."

This is what the drive really means. It means not only listing the stove employes, but the young college boys the high school boys and the man who is disqualified for military service through some disability.

Mussachusetts has been asked to raise twice what she raised last year in the way of produce, and experts who have studied the situation say that, provided the labor could be obtained, she could raise much more than that.

The raising of this produce is necessary to the nation, to the people at home and the boys who are over seas. This, too, is a point that is being emphasized. The boys need food, for without it they cannot fight. The people at home need food, in order to keep prices from climbing to a still greater height than they are at present.

BOSTON SCHOOLS TO KEEP OPPN TO JUNE 27

Boston's schools will have an extra week of sessions in June in order to make up some of the time lost on account of the coal scarcity. The School Board voted at its regular meeting to make June 28 the date for both the Latin High and the Normal schools to hold graduation exercises. All other schools will close

EMPEY SHOWN IN WAR FILM

Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey, author of "Over the Top," shows just how he went over in a gripping picture at the Globe Theatre that has that title and the new famous sergeant for its hero. It is here for a two weeks' run.

Charges across No Man's Land with shells bursting all around the charging troops, close-ups showing the deadly mortars and the deadlier big guns in action are features of the film.

An immense explosion in which thousands of tons of munitions are destroyed is realistically accurate. The battle scenes are real "thrillers."

Some of the trench stuff that livens Empey's book makes good captions for the pictures and some of the things which he describes in his book are shown in the pictures.

It is a good picture anyway, whether the one who sees it has read the book or not, and it will help some Americans to understand what the war is like at close range and what the German propaganda means and what are its results.

Lois Meredith, a screen favorite, appears with Empey and other well-known screen stars are seen in the film.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Last night at the Majestic Theatre D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," the tremendous story of France and the old war, began its fourth week to audiences that in enthusiasm and genuine pleasure fully equaled the appeal with which this master work of filming received in Boston.

Condensed Criticisms

By THE DRAMATIC EDITOR.

Wilbur Theatre—Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in "Keep Her Smiling," continue to attract with their sweet and simple comedy of domesticity.

Shubert Theatre—"So Long Letty," one of the snappiest musical comedies in several years, is drawing very successfully week after week.

Park Square Theatre—This is the last week of Lady Chetwynd in "Her Country," a drama of life in Germany.

Plymouth Theatre—"The Man Who Came Back" continues to pull with greater power than any melodrama which has visited Boston in years.

Tremont Temple—"My Four Years in Germany," with Ambassador Gerard is now in its fourth week.

MODERN THEATRE AND BEACON THEATRE—At the Modern and Beacon Theatres yesterday an excellent bring of photoplays were shown for the first times in Boston. Pauline Frederick is afforded the opportunity to display her superior gifts of emotional acting in the role of Natasha in the screen version of Count Leo Tolstoy's powerful novel, "Resurrection." Though the Russian monarchy has fallen since the story was written, and the evils that the story was designed to hold up for castigatment no longer are operative, the vitality of its plot remains with undiminished appeal. And the dramatic of the picturing Tolstoy drew in the telling of the adventures of the girl who fought conditions that prevented her resurrection from the bondage her fall from grace placed her in, will never fail of response. The photoplay version shown yesterday retains to the full the power of the story. On the same bill was shown "Joan of Plattsburg," picturing Mabel Normand.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"Toot Toot" began the third week of its engagement at the Colonial Theatre last evening. Founded upon the Rupert Hughes story, "Souls Adrift," the comedy of recall at close of business, April 26, 1918. A. KAUL, Assistant Secretary.

ENGLISH WAR PLAY AT THE TREMONT

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Ever play stage coach?

It's a game where all are seated, and at a signal everybody changes places, there being a forfeit for the slowest player.

The English name for stage coach is General Post.

The play at the Tremont, which offers William Courtney and Thomas A. Wise as co-stars, bears this peculiar title because it expresses the surprise of lots of people in England at topsy-turvy conditions caused by the war.

"Peers in the ranks and tailors in command, by jove," declares Sir Genesis Broughton, the testy old baronet played by Wise.

Over here it has always been our theory that a man must be accepted for what he is and does, not what his parents were. A few musty persons have tried to preserve British ideas of caste in America, but as they could find few people to agree with them, their views haven't made much impression.

We cannot understand the stupefaction with which a nation that always held that an officer must be a gentleman born has discovered that tailors, counter jumpers and shoe stick makers are capable of leading men in battle. James Harold Terry's play, "General Post," was the first dramatization of these extraordinary conditions, and the spectacle of a baronet, as a private, saluting a tailor colonel, caused British audiences to rock with mirth.

In Mr. Terry's play Smith, a tailor, goes to war and comes back a General, wearing the Victoria Cross. The baronet's family who wanted to put the tailors, counter jumpers and shoe stick makers are trying to force her to marry the general. In the final act.

There is very little action and an enormous amount of talking in "General Post." Although the speeches are long, they are frequently interesting and frequently funny.

Most of the comedy is supplied by Thomas Wise, Edward Emerton, Jr., and rare comedian, Thomas Wise. His lines are amusing and delivered in delightful characterization. Every possible shade and seeming of a laugh has been in developed, and he gets its fullest possibility and he is almost the most enjoyable for you the enjoyment you can get from the play.

William Courtney, in a cast of people who manage to speak Georgian land by their voices and manners, plays a tailor as though it were a Chicago or Philadelphia tailor instead of an English one. When he gets into field uniforms and does assume rank and station he is the graceful and debonair leading man of "Under Fire."

Cathleen Nesbitt, who came to this country with the Irish players several season ago, is the democratic heroine. She is an acquired taste which I haven't acquired. Brenda Bond gave a polished performance as a cultured Englishwoman with an elaborate foot for caste.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Classed as one of the "Big Shows" of the season, "The Spering Widow" gets the bol upon the stage of Waldron's Casino this week. There is a wealth of harmony, much comedy, a bit of grace of graceful dancing, all of which ele ments are contained in a new and correct musical comedy. Harry Cooper, a comedian of original methods, heads the cast of funmakers and is equipped with opportunities that give him plenty to do every looking. Aiding him in this portion of the entertainment are such clever people as Dave Fresh, R. Cook and Jack Strouse, while the female contingent is topped by Drena Mack, Jr., operatic prima donna whose smooth, clear voice deserves true in the several solos which she renders in artistic fashion. Billie De Rex and Ruth Denice, a pair of dainty singers and dancers, complete the vaudeville specialties which are an important part of the program.

BOSTON THEATRE—Many times the S. R. O. sign has been hung out before the door of the theatre where the famous Dolly Sisters were playing and yesterday at the Boston Theatre they proved their remarkable ability in the films when they packed every available corner of that mammoth playhouse for the initial time of their first film feature. "The Million Dollar Dollies" is a vaudeville bill of exceptional merit, the audiences were well entertained. "The Million Dollar Dollies" is the lovely twin sisters, whose toes have twinkled behind the footlights here in very large theatre in this country, have chosen a splendid vehicle for their premier venture in the films.

GAYETY THEATRE — For many seasons now Fred Irwin's "Majestic" have been before the theatre going public, and has proven a successful organization and has been weighed critically year after year and has never yet been found wanting. That organization opened yesterday at the Gayety Theatre, and that production Mr. Irwin has put into it all the knowledge of a long career in the theatre. Among the well-known burlesque and vaudeville entertainers to be presented are Bert Lytell, one of the widest diversity are Florence Bennett, Lyle La Pine, Cunningham and Rose, Hutch Harbour, Roscoe Ails, Flo Emery, Joe Dell, Maud Baxter, Hazel Morris, May Belmont, George Leon and others.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—The leading act on the vaudeville bill at Loew's St. James Theatre yesterday was Nat Nazarro and company, in their skit which they call "A Variety of Varieties." They offer a variety of turns, each of which is done with cleverness, ranging from wonderful tumbling and hand balancing to dog jumping, dancing and instrument playing. The others on the bill include William K. Stanton and company in a clever comedy of business life, "Cloaks and Suits," and Tabor and Green, colored comedians and singers, who are leaders in their line of work.

LANCASTER THEATRE—Yesterday at the Lancaster Theatre there was shown "The Claim," picturing Edith Storey in a thrilling story wherein she is the mother of a child, which she leaves with Alice Hearst to provide because her husband had left her. The child grows up, and the good people having become wealthy she makes claim for the child in the hopes that she may get money to further a project she had in mind, and sympathetic incident turns her mind from this, and she finds happiness.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—Heading the bill for the first half of the week is "The Blue Bird," a picturization of Maeterlinck's famous drama of the same name. It is a photoplay that appeals to theatregoers of all ages, and it offers not a little attraction to children in the audience. It was warmly applauded yesterday, as were also Bryant Washburn in "Twenty-One," a Tom comedy entitled "Fare, Please," and a Western drama of the days of '49 entitled "The Wind."

Coming Events

"Head Over Heels"—The new Henry W. Savage play with music in which the saucy Mitzi is to make her reappearance in Boston at the Tremont Theatre, Tuesday evening, May 21st, will be named "Head Over Heels." It is expected to prove another hit in the long line of musical plays bearing the Henry W. Savage trademark that have first made their fame in Boston and to find them a delightful successor to "King Dodo," "The Prince of Pilsen," "Woodland" and others.

Benefit performance—Through the kindness of Selwyn & Company and Lady Cheyne, the Thursday evening performance of The Canary, the patriotic play in which the distinguished English lady is starring at the Park Square Theatre, will be given as a benefit performance for the Women's Overseas hospitals. The entire proceeds for this evening will be donated to the Boston committee of this worthy organization in charge of Mrs. Benjamin P. Pitman.

Red Cross benefit—Leading theatregoers will welcome with great joy the announcement that the Boston Metropolitan chapter of the American Red Cross, through the joint performance of J. Hartley Manners' "Peg o' My Heart" and "Happy Go Lucky," to be given by the greatest cast of stars ever assembled, will take place on Tuesday evening, May 21, at the Boston Opera House. There will be but a single performance of this stirring war play, as the cast will leave for three weeks only, and the itinerary includes the principal cities of the country. The whole affair represents the most remarkable individual contribution to charity ever made by the theatrical profession of America. Included in this amazing cast are the following players as George Arliss, George M. Cohan, Mrs. Fiske, Julia Arthur, Frank McIntyre, Hedda Hopper, James T. Powers, Beryl Mercer, O. P. Heggie, George McFarlane, Wallace de Cisneros, Burr McIntosh, Laurette Taylor, H. B. Warner and Chauncy Olcott.

BARRAGE OF MIRTH AT KEITH'S

It is a well-intrenched grouch indeed that does not break ground before the barrage of mirth the funsters are laying down at the Keith's for this week. Lillian Shaw, past mistress of dialect, leads an imposing array of hilarity artillerists with a group of songs written with an eye single to her remarkable talent for character work.

Right behind Miss Shaw is Bert Fitzgibbon, who is admittedly the last word in eccentricity. No one ever has been "out of it" for himself, given what he is going to say or do when he steps out on the firing line. His comic intents and purposes, Mr. Fitzgibbon is undeniably mistable in his "getting" and he is proud of his reputation in that regard. Another comedian of parts is James J. Morton, the "boy of inflection."

Mrs. Thomas Whiffen is the central figure in an effective little sketch, brimful of clean humor, which portrays the efforts of a grandmother to break her daughter out of the habit of using slang. A neat thread of romance runs through the story, of course. Conlin and Glass, in a new act, and Reine Davis, "the lady of laughter," in some new songs, also add something to the general gayety.

In point of novelty and speciality, "All for Democracy," an Oregon built around America, in the war, is one of the best acts seen at Keith's in a long time. Very life-like impersonations are given of great national figures from Washington to Wilson.

Other acts on the bill include the Belgium trio, acrobats; Seabury and Shaw, dancers, and the Hearst-Pathe weekly pictorial review.

MISS CARLISLE'S MATINEES—At the Hollis Street Theatre this week Simms Manning Carlisle and members of her supporting company in "The Country Cousin," will give a performance of John Masefield's powerful drama, "The Tragedy of Nan." Boston playgoers, who have become familiar with, and have very greatly admired Miss Carlisle and her associates in the modern American comedy in which they are appearing, will be greatly interested in the portrayals by these players of such totally different types of characters as are to be found in the Masefield play. The performance by Miss Carlisle and her associates is in the nature of an artistic labor of love. Among those who will appear in the cast are Alfred Lunt, Beatrice Noyes, John Harwood, Charles Mackay, Alice Blandick, Louise Prussing and Albert Tavernier. Mr. Harwood has charge of the stage direction, both in the scenery and costumes for the presentation have been specially designed by Wilmot Heitland.

PARK THEATRE—The fifth week at the Park Theatre promises to have a special appealing attraction for the ladies and all movie fans to advantage of the opportunity to see Kitty Gordon displaying beautiful gowns. She is seen as the leading attraction in "The Purple Lily." Miss Gordon has a chance to display her versatility in acting, and as the star cast, makes up one of the best photo plays put onto a screen. Lyell, in his first Metro production, "The Trail to Yesterday," a six-act Western drama, follows on the bill, and shows a wonderful story of revenge which is softened into love by the honest affections of a young woman. All admirers of William Farnum's new film at his best in one of his most blood-curdling dramas. "The Conquest of Quitino," also is included on the program as a special attraction.

ORPHEUM THEATRE — Morlan's Dogs, a troupe of remarkably well trained canines forty strong, headed this week's vaudeville bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday. Few animal acts have made such a pleasing impression as this troupe. The surrounding acts included Jones and Sylvester in their skit, "The Blacksmier and the Actor"; Lillian Mortimer and company in the farce, "How's Business a Week?"; Stuart, Don Court and Woods, in "The English Chappies, Dressers and the Actress"; a comedy, singing and dancing offering; Gordon, Barker and Lucky, singing and comedians, and Gaskill and Mack. On the screen there were shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy, and the photoplay, "The Big, Best Show on Earth," picturing Enid Bennett as the daughter of a circus owner.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—There was a fine bill of vaudeville and photoplays shown at the Columbia Theatre yesterday. Dorothy Dalton was pleasing in "Tyrant Fear," in which she is seen as a young woman, the object of love of a tyrannous fear, who is rescued from this strange bondage through unusual experiences. The accompanying photoplay is a drama of the days of the Drury Lane production, "The Whip."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Alexandra Carlisle in "The Country Cousin" began the sixth week at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening. The lasting qualities of the comedy is being happily attested by the continuous success of its large houses.

Third Anniversary of the Lusitania Sinking

That Act Lit the Fuse Which Ended in the War Between The United States and Germany

Today is the third anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania. The German submarine, which, in violation of international law and humanity, sank the Lusitania without warning and destroyed the lives of 114 American men, women and children, lighted a fuse which ended in the declaration of war. That act of unjustifiable violation, outlawed by the rules of civilized warfare, was as much the beginning of the war between Germany and the United States as the Boston Massacre was the beginning of the American Revolution.

The American public mind had been shocked and greatly prejudiced by Germany's violation of Belgium. But even our most belligerent leaders, like Colonel Roosevelt, had warned the nation that their traditional policy of non-interference with European affairs—when those affairs did not directly concern us—ought to be followed in the case of Belgium. But the sinking of the Lusitania directly concerned us, brought the war home to us and shocked a large part of the American public into the belief that we could not escape the war; while it also made a still larger element of the American public fear that we must sooner or later have to deal with a nation run amuck.

The sinking of the Lusitania will be an historic date in American history. Our school children will, a hundred years from now, see in their school histories a picture of the Lusitania going down, and they will be told that this tragedy on the sea was the shadow which the event of our entry into the war had cast before it.

It is a singular thing that the sinking of two ships—the Maine and the Lusitania—should be the spectacular tragedies that in history will mark the beginning of our last two wars.

Will Senate Give to Women Living Labor Conditions?

Does the Senate propose to give women and children in Massachusetts living conditions of employment? The House has passed a bill limiting the hours of labor for women and children in Massachusetts to fifty hours a week.

England has had experience with long hours of labor. England has learned from bitter experience in this war that you do not get a greater output from labor which you overwork. Life and death hangs upon the ability of her working people to turn out products to their utmost capacity. The experiment was tried by persuading them to work long hours during the war. They tried the experiment willingly and patriotically. But while the spirit was willing, the flesh was weak. It was found from this experience that the law of diminishing returns very promptly and inexorably set in against long hours of daily labor. The English authorities discovered what they ought to have known in the beginning, that short hours occupied with snap and vim produce greater results than long hours dragged through with depleted energies. Therefore, the English authorities shortened the hours of the working people just as they shortened the period of the soldier in the trenches or in any arduous work.

Our own Ordnance Department finds that the same principle is true with American labor, and has recommended an eight-hour day in the arsenals and in the ordnance divisions of the service.

The House has responded to the appeal of humanity and intelligence. Will the Senate follow the example of the House or follow the dictation of a few short-sighted, selfish manufacturers?

Senators Lodge and Weeks Voted Right

It is not often that the AMERICAN finds anything right in the public conduct of Senators Weeks and Lodge. They represent the old, passed or passing, political regime in America.

Under cover of the Civil War and its overshadowing, all engrossing issues, the protected industries, the railroads and the bankers of America have controlled our government for a generation through men like Lodge and Weeks. These men do not yet, probably, realize that the forces which have kept them and their kind in office have lost their powers through dissipation. Nor will they ever realize it while they remain in office. It is a changed world that they do not understand.

But occasionally these men stand up for a democratic ideal as they did the other day when they voted against further restrictions upon the American press. They were right. They were more democratic than the Democrats who voted for the restriction and their constituents ought to know it.

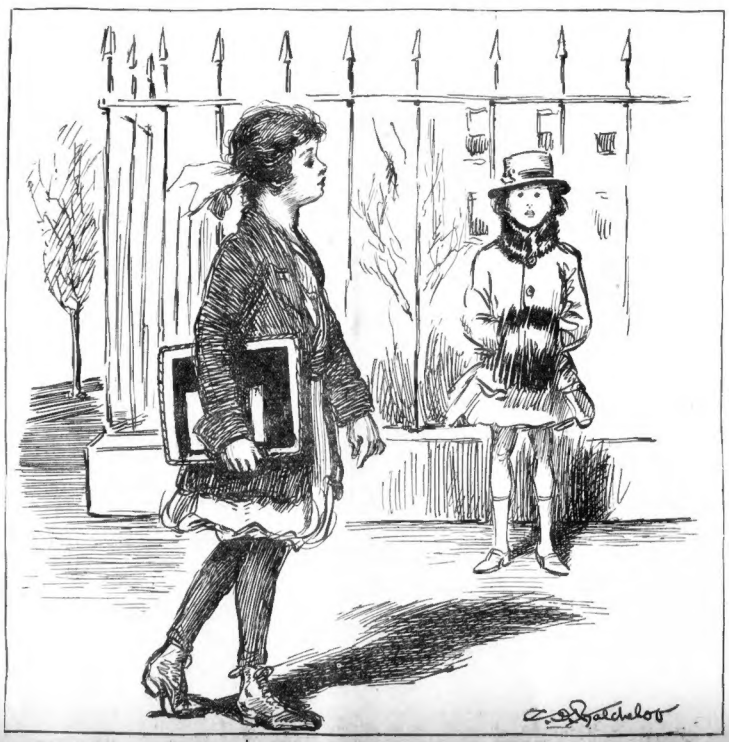
Lomasney's Fine Loan Drive

Hon. Joseph P. Lomasney and the Ward 5 Committee on the Liberty Loan surpassed all the other ward committees in Boston in selling Liberty bonds.

This fine achievement of Mr. Lomasney and his committee reminds one of the thoroughness and success with which his brother, Martin M. Lomasney, patriotically labored in the Constitutional Convention in [illegible]dling of a great and delicate question.

A Plot to Foil the Kaiser

Her Father Is a Captain



POOR LITTLE BUTTERFLY WOMAN FAILS

By Winifred Black

SHE'S smaller than ever—or anyhow she looks smaller. Her clothes don't fit her the way they used to. There's something queer about the way her coat hangs, and her poor little hat that was so saucy and full of coquetry the last time I saw her—let's see, that was about a year ago, wasn't it?—looks as if it had been left out in the rain for a month, and nobody cared enough about it to straighten out the ribbons and shake out the petals of the forlorn little rose when it was found.

She had an artificial flower in her belt, and I think there was a little rouge on her cheeks, poor thing—she used to have color enough of her own, without going to the beauty shop for anybody else's—but she wore no gloves, and her thin little hands were not only bony, beneath the skin grime that hands have when the owner of them doesn't see really hot water very often, or have the use of much really good soap.

Slipping Down

But she held up her head and she laughed and she told me two funny stories—one of them had a song in it, all about babies and roses and waterfalls, and she trilled a line or two of it when she told the story, and her voice was almost what it used to be, only somehow——

Things have been going wrong with the little woman, frightfully wrong, and the worst of it is she knows it.

A year ago we all knew things were going wrong with her, but she didn't, and so it wasn't so hard to see—the gradual slipping down and fading out, and fringing and letting go.

"Day" Is Over

That's how the little woman who's grown smaller in the last year looked to me this morning when she came to ask me if I knew of a position she might get—on the stage or in the movies or with the circus, perhaps, riding, or taking photgraphs for a newspaper—oh, there were a great many things she could do and would be glad to do—now. Only the trouble is, she never took the time to learn how to do any one of them really well.

Poor little thing! I wish I knew how to do something to help her. I know she would do anything in the world to help me if I were in trouble—anything she could, I mean.

Of course, she couldn't do very much, but still—what a tragedy it is to be a butterfly in a world full of hard-working bees.

For Democracy's Cause

By HENRY E. BROWN.

WE all have something in life we can do,
No matter how large or how small.
Your faith mattereth not—
Christian or Jew,
The good God above loves us all.

Your country's at war with God as our side,
And we'll trust in him day by day.
With courage, and hope, and with faith in our hearts,
We will send "them" bravely away.

When they're dying like men in "No man's land,"
And you read the terrible news,
There will be no processions—no loud blaring band,
You'll forget it, and other thoughts choose.

But it's YOUR fault he died, yes I mean it—
You will laugh and then wonder why,
Well, I'll tell you in the best way I see fit,
How you helped that brave lad to die.

HE was doing HIS "bit" for our glorious cause,
What were YOU doing? Nothing, you say!
Don't you know we're at war and we want all your help,
Get busy, my friend, right away.

Dig down in your pockets, and give 'till it hurts—
It will tighten Democracy's clamps.
If you don't—"They" will win.
You don't want that, you say.
Do your "bit," then—Buy WAR SAVING STAMPS.

MAPLE-SUGAR MAKING IS SPRING'S FANCY

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HEAR that John Burroughs, in his eighty-first year, has been making maple sugar. It is a peculiarly American occupation and one that promotes long life by making life more desirable. If America had muses and nymphs, like old Greece, they would all be found gathered in green dells, where diamond-bright brooks leap among the far-projecting roots of giant rock maples, whose grouped tops proclaim afar the existence of a "sugar bush." To have passed one's childhood in the neighborhood of a sugar bush is to have lived under Olympus, where the nectar drips from the table of the gods! The sweetest of sweets is thick maple syrup thrown out from the boiling pot upon a late snow-bank to cool, and called, where I was a boy, "caney," with a hard "c" and a long "a."

One of the blackest crimes of commercialism is the invention of mixed, faked, adulterated and lying maple sugar and maple syrup. The taste and aroma of real, pure maple recall Alfred Russell Wallace's description of the fruit of the durian tree of Borneo: "The more you eat of it the less you feel inclined to stop. In fact, it is a new sensation worth a voyage to the East to experience."

Romance of Woods

The romance of maple sugar-making is even superior to that of Indian corn-husking. Its symbol is the "Sugar-Moon" of the Algonquins. It comes at the end of the Winter as the other comes at the beginning. While wreaths of snow are yet hanging on the hills and white banks packed in the wrinkles of the land are slowly melting to feed a thousand gurgling rills which do not awake until after sunrise, while the sunny mornings are still preceded by frosty nights and northerly winds chill the blood of the early risers, the sap begins to run so abundantly in the veins of the gray maples that it will pour out of an auger-hole driven three inches into the trunk as if the tree were actually bleeding its life-blood. Before you can withdraw the helical steel the out-gushing stream will have sped down the outer bark to the ground.

Tapping a Tree

Then, if you properly despise the metallic spouts that give a tinny taste to the sap, and a tinny aspect to the whole affair, which chases away the romance, you will, with a wooden mallet, drive into the sugar-hole a wooden spout, made by cleaning out the pith from a short length of sumach stem, and hanging a pail on the outer end of the spout, your ears will be entranced by the low, murmuring music of the sap falling in a tiny, but steady, stream.

If you are new to the work you will be amazed by the fast "bleeding" of the tree, and will feel, perhaps a slight twinge of remorse, as if you were taking the life of a sentient being. And the delicate aroma that spreads through the air will, at the same time, heighten your pleasure and increase your uneasy sense of immolating something that represents a higher stage of existence than mere "sticks and stones."

The boiling down of the sap should be done on the spot, under the trees, where a large iron pot may be suspended over a fire by means of stakes driven in the ground. And, if possible, there should be a clean snow bank in a shady spot near by, where from huge, wooden spoons, gouts of thick, delicious, fragrant syrup may be thrown upon the snow to be hardened into "caney," which will stretch like India rubber, or molasses candy, and when put into the mouth will implant a gustatory memory that will last, like the perfume of a grain of musk, for a whole lifetime.

Call to Insects

All the early insects will be there. They will get into the very midst of things. They regard it as their own festival. They are as fascinated by the fragrance and the sweetness as you are, and will drown themselves in crowds if you do not save them from the sacrifice. If somebody in the neighborhood keeps bees they will come from miles away, flying as straight as arrows, humming, buzzing, and ready to sting, jealous of any interference with saccharine matters, which are their special affair.
